

BORAH DEMANDS CONGRESS STAY ON JOB UNTIL DROUTH BILL IS PASSED

Insurgent's Acceptance of G. O. P. House Leader's No Compromise' Statement Is Cheered Wildly by Senate Democrats.

DECLARES PLAN IS NOT A DOLE

Says Such a Claim Is 'Intellectual Dishonesty'—Follows Scathing Attack by Caraway on President Hoover.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—A remarkable demonstration took place in the Senate this afternoon when Borah of Idaho, supporting the Democratic position in the battle with President Hoover over the proposed $25,000,000 relief fund, declared that Congress should stay in session until it had "done its duty" toward suffering Americans.

The Democrats broke into applause. Led by Ashurst of Arizona, several of them sprang to their feet. It was a scene without precedent in recent years in the Senate chamber, where usually the most biting words are received with a show of emotion.

Borah began his speech with a reference to his usual deliberate manner. His sentences cut and dashed.

"This talk about setting a precedent of doing the dole system is rank intellectual dishonesty," he declared. "Congress is never going to do what it has done again and again in this country and in foreign countries—appropriate money for the relief of people who are suffering from what we are pleased to call an act of God."

"Dole Cometh Times." "Who says there is anything new in such an action?" We have seen it countless times in the past. Is there a man in this chamber who will deny that Congress has repeatedly appropriated money to take care of people in this country and in other countries who were suffering from a great calamity of nature?"

He read a letter written by a dead cross worker in Tennessee, describing the pitiable plight of a mother with three small children when she was trying to feed on a ration of soured meal and dried pork grease.

"We are told," shouted Borah, "that for the Government to feed this woman and her sick children would destroy her self-respect and make a bad citizen of her. Does anyone believe it? It is a cowardly imputation on the wisdom I present it and I repeat."

Not Meeting a Situation.

"The Red Cross is not meeting the situation. Its own reports show it. It cannot meet the situation. To talk about feeding people on an average week is absurd. They can keep them from actual starvation but it is not taking care of them. Here is a woman who is being told as you would not feed a dog—she, the stray cur that comes into your yard. The health of her children is already being endangered. Yet we are told that it would be dangerous to put her and her children on a dole."

PALL OF SMOKE DOWNTOWN ON GROUNDHOG DAY

Motorists Drive With Lights on—Bright Sunshine in Outlying Districts.

"Groundhog day" dawned today with prospects that two different kinds of weather would be required in St. Louis to bear out the tradition.

Judged by forenoon indications, there would be six more weeks of winter in the Forest Park section, where the groundhog could see his shadow, but an early spring a mile east of the park, where he probably couldn't tell that he had crawled out of his hole.

The sun rose bright and clear in outlying districts, with only a light haze in the West End and the suburbs. A dense smoke pall lay over downtown St. Louis and the atmosphere was visibly hazy inside large offices. From the vicinity of Sarah street eastward visibility was about 100 yards and most motorists drove with lights burning.

JOBLESS OBJECT TO FARE, TRY TO RAID FREE KITCHEN

As a Result 2000 of Them Are Turned Away Hungry, Five Go to Jail.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—Disappointed with the free meals they had been receiving, 2000 malcontents fought with police in a futile attempt to seize "The Kitchen," charity restaurant here yesterday. The kitchen offers unemployed men their choice of pork and beans or stew. The only limit to the amount a man is permitted to eat is the supply in the kitchen. A thousand men had been served and twice as many more were waiting for their evening handout when agitators began shouting for steaks and chops and baked potatoes. They incited 200 men to attack the kitchen. In the hope of serving themselves the kind of meals they would like to have. They were met by the 25 workers in the kitchen. The defenders were joined by police. A riot call brought reinforcements. But the fight continued until riot cycle police rode their machines through the mob.

Five men were arrested on disturbance charges, the doors of the kitchen closed and nearly 2000 men turned away hungry.

COLIMA VOLCANO ERUPTING IN MEXICO; PEASANTS FLEE

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.—Dispatches to La Prensa from Tonila say peasants in the State of Jalisco are fleeing from the neighborhood of Colima volcano, which is in eruption for the first time in 18 years.

A column of flames and heavy smoke emerged yesterday from the crater of the volcano, which is 12,750 feet high. Rumbles from the crater also added to the alarm. Dispatches from Ciudad Guzman in Jalisco say many peasants already have deserted the region of the volcano and sought refuge there. Special dispatches from Oaxaca report a continuation of earth tremors there. They are said not to be of a serious nature.

Lady Dies Seriously Ill

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Lady Decies, the former Helen Vivien Gould, daughter of the late George Jay Gould of New York, is dangerously ill here. Miss Gould and the fifth Baron Decies were married in 1911 and have one son and two daughters. Lord Decies had a distinguished career in the army and in the early part of the World War commanded a battalion of cavalry. Later he was press censor in Ireland.

ANARCHIST CHIEF OF ARGENTINA AND HIS AID EXECUTED

Refuses to Be Blindfolded as He Takes Place Before Firing Squad—100 Witness His Death.

BOTH IMPLICATED IN BANK BOMBING

"Long Live Anarchy" Is Shout From Nearby Prison Cells as Rifleman Carry Out Sentence.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 2.—Paulino Scarfo, lieutenant of the Argentine's executed gangster king and confessed co-author of the bomb attempt against the branch of the First National Bank of Boston in 1927, was put to death by a firing squad today. Scarfo, one of Buenos Aires' leading anarchists, was arrested Friday after a raid on his apartment in which a policeman and two gangsters were killed. He was tried immediately for murder and sentenced to death. His chief, Di Giovanni, who was executed yesterday, was arrested Thursday after a street fight in which a 13-year-old girl was killed. Their activities were similar to gangster activities in the United States.

More than 100 persons gathered in the patio of the national penitentiary to witness the end of Di Giovanni, who for 12 years had preyed upon society through bombings and other outrages. Scarfo had the smoke of eight rifles faded away when shouts of "Viva la anarquia!" ("Long live anarchy") rose from nearby prison cells.

Refusing the spiritual consolation of a priest and scornful of a blindfold, Di Giovanni died apparently without fear. His guards said he joked with them during the last hours of his life. Di Giovanni prospered as a bandit leader while living in comparative safety and comfort in his suburban estate.

Aid Confesses Bombing. Authorities said that Scarfo confessed that he and Di Giovanni were the organizers of a bombing attempt against the branch of the First National Bank of Boston here during the Sacco-Ventzetti demonstrations in 1927. The two were thought to have been involved in the recent railroad station bombings in which several persons were killed. Their gang also participated in political agitations and counterfeiting.

Convicted by a quick court martial and sentenced to death, Di Giovanni was led from the death cell and taken before the executioners and the group of witnesses and newspapermen. Permission to say farewell to Scarfo, and to make a statement were denied. Just before he died, however, he muttered several words which were indistinguishable by those nearby. Going from the prison, the condemned man made slow progress, as his ankles and wrists were heavily shackled. With his crude prison clothes and a stubble of beard on his face, he did not look like the dashing, well-dressed bandit of better days. His head was thrown back as he shuffled slowly but unaided to the execution chair. He offered no resistance while being strapped into the chair.

RADIO STATION AT VATICAN COMMUNICATES WITH U. S.

Regular Service Probably Will Be Started Feb. 12 With Communication From Pope.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 2.—The Vatican City broadcasting station communicated with the United States Friday night and early Saturday morning in carrying out its first transmission experiments, it was made known today. As a consequence of these experiments it is practically certain that the station will begin to function regularly Feb. 12, which is the anniversary of the Pope's coronation.

With the Margulis Guglielmo Marconi conducting the experiments, the Vatican operators made four radio-telegraphic broadcasts beginning at 7 p. m. Friday and ending at 2 a. m. Saturday. The National Broadcasting Co. acknowledged receipt of the broadcasts. So bad were atmospheric conditions that neither Rome's 50 kilowatt station nor London's station could hear New York, but the Vatican station heard perfectly. It is thought today that at the opening of the service the pontiff will write a statement to be read over the microphone by a Cardinal, but at the last minute the Pope may speak himself.

THREE MEN SHOT TO DEATH IN EAST SIDE GAMBLING FLAT; DUMPED IN DITCH

CROSS EXAMINES BRUNK ON 'TRAP' SET FOR BRITAIN

Attorney at Hearing Questions Treasurer on Alleged Negotiations With Legislator.

LATTER DENIES HE AGREED TO $400 FEE

State Official Refuses to Answer Question of How He Paid Off $10,000 in Notes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 2.—State Representative Edward L. Britain of Greene County, had a preliminary hearing here this afternoon on a charge of accepting a $400 bribe from State Treasurer Larry Brunk, to influence a House committee investigating Brunk's official acts, of which Britain was a member, to make a report favorable to Brunk. Britain was arrested last Monday evening as he was leaving Brunk's office in the Capitol, after a session with the treasurer.

Britain said he paid the $400 part of it marked currency, to Britain. Brunk said he laid a trap for Britain, after the latter was alleged to have solicited payment to "handle" the committee. Brunk had an officer and three other men posted outside the treasurer's office to take Britain in custody. Britain at that time denied soliciting or obtaining any money from Brunk for his vote or influence in the investigating committee, from which he has resigned.

Britain was the chief witness today and went over the ground covered in his statements at the time Britain was arrested.

Brunk Quotes Conversation. He told of the first conversations with Britain in which he said Britain said the committee report could be made favorable for money.

"What conversations did you have at the time he first mentioned money?" Brunk was asked. "He said he was certain a majority of the committee could be handled if paid $500 a piece. I took it to mean that $2000 would be needed."

The State Treasurer continued his testimony explaining how he had talked with Britain several times after the first conversation. He told of agreeing with Britain to pay $400 as a first installment and the balance in later payments. "Did you give him $400?" Prosecuting Attorney Sevier asked. "I did," said Brunk.

He then was handed a roll of bills which was identified by Brunk as being the marked bills and numbered bills which he said he gave the legislator. The money was offered in evidence.

Favorable Report for $2000. "What did you give Britain this $400 for?" asked the prosecutor. "He told me he could get a favorable report from the committee for $2000," Brunk replied.

Sevier asked Brunk if he named other men on the committee who would vote favorably. The Treasurer said he named three members of the committee, and another who could be influenced to vote favorably without money. Sam Wear, Springfield attorney, cross-examined Brunk about the first conversation in which the money subject was brought up. He asked Brunk if he did not know it was a felony to give a bribe, Brunk he knew that but did not want "to make the committee mad" by refusing.

The only answer Wear could elicit from Brunk when he continued asking him as to what he told Britain in regard to the bribe was "No report on the loans is given."

CLOSED BANK HAS $42,000,000 IN UNSECURED LOANS

Inventory of Depository in New York Shows Also Advances of $25,995,500 to Subsidiaries.

DIRECTORS LISTED AMONG BORROWERS

Politicians and Judges Were Debtors to Concern—Frozen or Worthless Assets $67,000,000.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Frozen or worthless assets totaling $67,000,000 caused the failure of the Bank of United States, according to an analysis of the State Banking Department's inventory of the depository made public yesterday. This analysis is unofficial and not a part of the inventory, which was released without comment by Superintendent of Banks Broderick. The inventory, a 1000-page document, gives no indication of the amount depositors eventually will receive. Its sole purpose is to list in detail the assets of the bank as set forth on its books Dec. 10, the last day of business. Total resources were $237,863,937. But the inventory discloses a state of affairs that undoubtedly contributed to the largest bank collapse in the history of the country.

Loans Without Security. Among its outstanding features are: The heavy preponderance of unsecured loans. Of $59,000,000 lent from the main office, $42,000,000 was without security except the notes of the borrowers.

2. Loans to subsidiary corporations totaling $25,995,500. The chief subsidiaries now are bankrupt. Almost all these loans were unsecured and now seem uncollectable. In the few secured loans the collateral consisted of the bank's stock or securities of its subsidiaries.

3. Enormous investments of the bank tied up in real estate loans to real estate corporations and to the clothing industry.

4. An overdraft of $67,000 by the Morris White Holding Corporation. Morris White is a director of the bank.

Prominent Borrowers. Of special interest are the loans to prominent individuals. These include Martin T. Manton, senior judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals; Aaron J. Levy, Supreme Court Justice; Max S. Levine, General Sessions Judge; Louis B. Brodsky, Magistrate; Samuel S. Koenig, Republican boss; Edward J. Flynn, Secretary of State and Bronx Democratic boss; George W. Martin, Kings County Judge; A. L. Jacoby, Kings County Sheriff; James A. McQuade, Kings County Register; I. J. P. Alderman, Chief Assistant District Attorney for the Bronx; Dr. J. G. William Greff, Hospital Commissioner, and Jacob Cash, former City Marshal.

Others listed are Arkee and Louis Schwartz, owners of the Club Abbey; Ben Riley, owner of the Arrowhead Inn; Florence Ziegfeld Jr., Lee and J. J. Shubert, Winnie Lightner, Will Oakland, S. Z. Poll, theater magnate, and Samuel Rosoff.

Among the prominent indorsers of notes were Arnold Rothstein, murdered gambler; Richard B. Scandrett, William Randolph Hearst, Arthur W. Smith, son of the former Governor; William F. Kenny, Judge Manton; Philip Kleinfield, State Senator; George J. Atwell, former president of the National Democratic Club; Richard B. Scandrett, nephew of Senator Morrow; and Albert H. Vitale, ex-magistrate.

Loans to 17 Directors. Seventeen directors of the bank borrowed from it or signed the notes of others, the loans totaling $1,140,484. This does not include loans to companies in which they were interested. No report on the loans is given.

DO-X STILL HELD BY BAD WEATHER AT THE CANARIES

Plan Is to Take Off Tomorrow for Cape Verde Island on Way to Rio.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Feb. 2.—The DO-X, 12-motored German seaplane, today delayed until tomorrow its takeoff for the Cape Verde Islands, whence it will proceed across the Atlantic to Natal, Rio de Janeiro and New York. Continued bad weather and rough seas made the postponement necessary.

The big seaplane lifted its anchor early in the morning and cruised to Olinda Bay, 12 miles south of Puerto Lajas, where it could take off easier than on the bay here. The DO-X came here Saturday after a seven-hour flight from Lisbon. Bad weather forced postponement of the next hop to the Cape Verde Islands yesterday. Meanwhile the ship has been refueled with more than 4000 gallons of gasoline for the 845-mile flight to Port Praia.

The crew remained aboard the vessel last night, refusing invitations to ceremonials in the city.

THEATER EMBEZZLER GETS 3-YEAR TERM

James V. Noel, Who Took $9700 From the Missouri Pleading Guilty.

James V. Noel, former treasurer of the Missouri Theater, who stole $9700 from his employers and embarked on a spending spree with a companion in New Orleans, pleaded guilty today to two charges of embezzlement today and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary on each charge by Circuit Judge Taylor. The sentences will run concurrently.

Noel, who is 35 years old, appeared in court with his attorney, William Baer. He was nattily dressed and displayed no nervousness when admitting his guilt to the court.

"What caused you to take this money?" Judge Taylor asked. "Well, sir, I was living beyond my means I guess and needed money. The people I met in the theatrical business all had more money than I did, and I thought I had to keep up appearances."

Noel was charged with embezzling sums of $50 and $172. Werner is charged with receiving embezzled funds. His case is pending.

CENTRALIZED JURY PLAN REJECTED BY JUDGES

Vote Is 12 to 6 Against Bar Association Proposal Expected to Save $117,000 a Year.

Circuit Judges, meeting today in general session, rejected the centralized jury plan recommended unanimously by a joint committee of Judges and members of St. Louis Bar Association. Six voted in favor of the experiment and 12 against it.

Opponents of the proposal regarded it as impractical. Circuit Judge Rutledge, chairman of the committee which recommended the plan, estimated that it would result in an annual saving of $117,000 by reducing the number of jurors summoned from 700 to about 250 a week.

Under the plan, jurors would be summoned each week to the court of one judge who would hear excuses and assign jurors to courts where needed. Under the present plan each of the 15 civil divisions require at least 25 jurors a week and the three criminal divisions about 150 men in each division each week.

Judges who voted in favor of the proposed scheme were Rutledge, Peasey, Hogan, Taylor, Ryan and Green.

D. HOFFMAN, MERCHANT, IS ONLY ONE IDENTIFIED

He Disappeared Saturday Night After Telephoning He Would Be Home—Bodies Found Near Moellenbrock's Resort.

EACH WOUNDED 8 OR 10 TIMES

Prolonged Firing Heard Early Sunday Morning, Shells Strew Floor of Resort and Walls Are Bullet Marked.

The bodies of three men killed in a fight or gang execution in the gambling and speakeasy flat of "Wide Open" Smith at 330A East Broadway in the East St. Louis business district were found today, covered by brush, in a ditch beside a road near Moellenbrock's resort, four miles east of Granite City. One of the bodies was identified as that of David Hoffman, 29-year-old owner of a jewelry and men's furnishing store at 218 Collinsville avenue, who was last seen Saturday night in a restaurant near his store. His automobile, with the headlights still burning, was found yesterday afternoon less than half a block from "Wide-Open" Smith's establishment.

The other bodies have not been identified positively, although one has been tentatively identified as that of Thomas Walsh, a companion of the speakeasy proprietor. One is that of a well-dressed man about 50 years old. The other is the body of a man about 25 years old.

Prolonged Firing Heard. Prolonged firing heard at 1:15 o'clock yesterday morning at Collinsville avenue and Broadway fixes the shooting at that time. An investigation made by policemen at the time failed to locate the scene of the shooting, but it was found today by deputy sheriffs on anonymous information about the time the bodies of the men were being taken to Collinsville.

The bodies were found by Horace Foster, son of Henry Foster, a farmer. They lay in a ditch beside a side road, about 50 feet from a dirt road leading to Granite City.

Foster reported that he thought he noticed objects beneath a new brush pile in the ditch when he passed at 10 o'clock this morning. Passing the place this afternoon he stopped his truck to investigate and discovered the bodies of the men, one of them tall, and the others of less than medium height.

Foster reported the men were shot eight or 10 times each. The bodies were taken to the Schroepel undertaking establishment in Collinsville, to be held for identification.

Evidence of Shooting. The deputies found many evidences that a shooting had occurred at Smith's speakeasy. The walls and floors bore the marks of many bullets and .45 caliber cartridges, ejected either from a machine gun or automatic pistols, were strewn on the floor.

There were stains on the floor which deputies believed to be made by blood but the place had been freshly scrubbed in an apparent effort to eradicate the stains. A Negro arrested in the place told deputies he had been hired at a drug store, where he is employed as a porter, to clean up the place thoroughly.

The deputies reported that while they were in the place telephone calls were received from a man and a woman who asked respectively for Carl Shelton, notorious East Side gangster, and Tommy Hayes, equally notorious St. Louis gunman.

Hoffman's disappearance was reported to the police yesterday by Mrs. Anna Hoffman, his wife, with whom he resided at 8902

PLEAS TO REVERSE FALL'S CONVICTION MADE BY COUNSEL

Argument Begins in Washington for Ex-Secretary of Interior Found Guilty of Taking Bribe.

THREE JUSTICES HEAR STATEMENTS

Each Side Is Allowed Three Hours, So the Hearing Probably Will Continue Into Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Arguments for reversing the conviction of Albert B. Fall for accepting a bribe began today in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Counsel for the former Interior Secretary contended he had lacked any jurisdiction over the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve, the leasing of which led to his being judged guilty a year ago of taking $100,000 to influence him to award the lease to a company of Edward L. Doheny.

He was fined $100,000 and sentenced to one year in prison. Justice William H. Taft announced at the time that if he were on the bench when Fall came up for sentence, he would suspend the jail term.

Frank Hogan, Fall's chief counsel, argued that the former Cabinet officer could not be charged with bribery because the law required that a bribery charge could be lodged only when a Government officer accepted it to influence his official acts.

He contended that Congress under a general leasing law, had placed entire jurisdiction of naval oil lands under the naval secretary, and that Congress was the only authority that could designate the duties of any Government officer.

He said the executive order by President Harding in 1921, which placed jurisdiction over the naval oil reserves jointly under Fall and the Navy Secretary, was ineffectual and could not modify the law.

He quoted from an opinion by Attorney-General Stone in 1924, which held the executive order was without legal effect and without authority to confer jurisdiction on the Interior Secretary of any of the duties of the Navy Secretary.

Counsel for the defense and for the Government each were allotted three hours for arguments which were expected to extend into tomorrow. The case is being heard by Justices Robb, Van Orsdel and Cox.

The Government is represented by Ailes Pomerene, former United States Senator, a special counsel; Leo A. Rover, United States Attorney, and Neil Burkshaw, Assistant United States Attorney. Hogan told the court Fall had twice been tried for the identical crime. He recalled that Fall and Doheny were acquitted in 1926 on a charge of conspiring to defraud the Government in the Elk Hills lease.

He went into Justice Hitt's action in admitting as evidence in the bribery case testimony concerning his transactions with Harry F. Sinclair, which resulted in a lease to Sinclair of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve. He said the evidence showed Fall had received through his son-in-law $233,000 as payment for one-third interest in the Teapot Dome and Land Co. of New Mexico and argued that the testimony was irrelevant to the bribery charge.

He said its admission "constituted reversible error" and that Doheny, tried on a similar charge of giving the bribe, was acquitted when the Sinclair testimony was not permitted to be introduced.

The Government argued that Fall could not escape punishment on technicalities.

Pomerene, replying to Hogan, said that if Harding's Secretary of the Interior took the bribe he could be punished.

"Fall accepted administration of those reserves," Pomerene said. "The bids for them were received by Fall as Secretary of the Interior."

GOV. PARNELL INQUIRY FAILS
Arkansas Senate Tables Motion by Vote of 22 to 1.
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 2.—A resolution calling upon the Arkansas House of Representatives to investigate the charges against Gov. Harvey Parnell with a view to possible impeachment was tabled by the State Senate by a 22-to-1 vote today.

Senator Quarles of Phillips County submitted the resolution and was the only member present voting for it. The resolution set forth various charges which it asked the House to investigate. Among these were that the Governor had dominated the Banking and Insurance departments and had not enforced the laws regarding bank and insurance companies, resulting in many failures, that he had not taken proper steps to protect public funds on deposit in banks. That he had sponsored a program of heavy State expenditures which eventually would lead to bankruptcy of the State and that he had spent excessive sums in his last campaign.

Cates avenue. She told policemen that she last heard from her husband at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night when he telephoned that he was taking a late lunch and would be home soon. He was seen in Thompson's restaurant on Collinsville avenue at that time.

Mrs. Hoffman told the police her husband usually closed his store about 9 o'clock, but remained there until after 11 on Saturday night working on his stock.

The body of the elder of the unidentified men, thought to be that of Walsh, was clothed in a gray tweed suit, tan shoes, green tie and shirt and a gray overcoat. In the pockets was found a bill of sale for an automobile to Thomas J. Walsh, 218 North Fifty-seventh street, East St. Louis.

The body is that of a man about 40 years old, five feet eleven inches tall and weighing about 185 pounds. The hair is brown, streaked with gray.

Cards in Pocket.
In the pockets were found a quarter, a pocket knife and three business cards. One of them read: "Hodder Delivery Service," 1808 Gladys avenue, East St. Louis, Walter M. Hodder, Manager.

Another card was that of the Crystal Electric Sift Co. at 922 South Vandeventer avenue, and beside the printed name of W. C. Meyer it bore the name "Barney White," in pencil.

Still another card was that of the Studebaker Securities Co. at 218 North Fourth street which bore the printed name of N. D. Alpen. The third body is that of a man about 25 years old, five feet, ten inches tall and weighing about 170 pounds. The hair is reddish-brown and eyes are blue. It was clothed in a gray striped suit and light brown topcoat.

ALLOCATION OF $68,764,000 FOR GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The allocations of $68,764,000 for construction of public buildings, of which $49,515,000 is for cities and towns outside of the District of Columbia, was reported to Congress today by Secretary of Treasury Mellon.

The Treasury Secretary said no additional authorizations were needed for this construction, which includes nearly 200 buildings and additions. The appropriations for these allotments will have to be carried in the second deficiency bill yet to be drafted.

Soon after the new allocations reached the Capitol, the House passed the bill to increase the authorized public building program outside the District of Columbia by $100,000,000. The Senate also was getting ready for action, its Public Buildings Committee just having ordered a favorable report on this measure.

The authorization, Assistant Secretary Heath of the Treasury said, "represents the approximate amount required to meet the public building needs of the country as a result of surveys completed during the year 1930."

Among the allotments are $90,000 for a postoffice at Farmington, $70,000 at Lebanon, $70,000 at Clinton and $80,000 at Caruthersville, Mo.

City Employee Held in Crash.
A man booked as Joseph C. Runder, 44 years old, a city building inspector, was arrested yesterday afternoon for careless driving and possession of liquor when officers reported finding a bottle of whiskey in his possession after a machine he was driving collided with a parked truck at Sarah street and Vandeventer avenue.

DISCREPANCY OF $54,400 RAKED BY LEGISLATORS

State Treasurer's Failure to Check Interest Payments Made by Banks Is Criticized.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 2.—Failure of the State Treasurer's department to verify the correctness of monthly payments of interest on State funds by banks which are State depositories, which resulted in discrepancies in such payments totaling $54,400 since Jan. 1, 1925, were criticized in a report filed with the Legislature today by the Legislative Auditing Committee. The committee recommended steps be taken to correct this negligence and that all such accounts be checked and audited in the future.

A recent investigation of the interest payments by auditors, at the direction of Gov. Caulfield, disclosed discrepancies of $54,400 in the interest payments from Jan. 1, 1925, to last Sept. 30, including $10,581 which was paid by the banks during 1925-1928, but which was not found to be accounted for in the Treasurer's books.

Covers Two Terms.
The auditors reported that the approximately 45 depositories made payments during 1925-1928 that were $34,074 less than the amount shown should have been paid. This was during the term of former Treasurer C. Eugene Stephens.

From Jan. 1, 1929, to last Sept. 30 they reported the banks paid $3145 less than should have been paid. This was during the term of State Treasurer Larry Brunk, whose handling of State deposits in the now defunct Bank of Aurora is under investigation by a House committee, to determine if there is ground for institution of impeachment proceedings against Brunk by the House.

The Legislative Auditing Committee reported it had found that for several years the clerks in the Treasurer's office had accepted all interest remittances from banks as correct, without checking them.

No Recommendation on Brunk.
The committee referred briefly to the charges against Brunk but made no recommendation. As has been told Gov. Caulfield suspended Brunk last Oct. 14, after investigators charged the Bank of Aurora had withheld $5028 in interest due on State deposits, of which $2550 was deposited in an account in the bank known as the "Brunk rent account." It was charged that payments were made from this account on notes Brunk owed the bank, and upon other of his obligations. The bank also in financing Brunk's campaign for election as Treasurer. Brunk was reinstated in December through a ruling of the Supreme Court that the law under which the Governor was appointed was unconstitutional.

Brunk denied any knowledge of the withholding of the interest, or the existence of the rent account or of the use to which it was put. The legislative auditing committee was appointed by the Governor last November, as provided by law, to check the accounts of departments handling State funds, for the biennial period of 1929-1930. The law provides only a small staff, and the committee pointed out that in the limited time allowed by the law it had not been able to make a thorough investigation.

Members of the committee are: State Senator J. G. Morgan (Rep.), of Unionville, and Representatives Fred Spearman, of Miller County, and Eugene W. Nelson (Dem.), of Marion County, the latter speaker of the House.

The committee reported it had investigated the alleged irregularities in handling of funds of the Missouri Naval Reserve of St. Louis, but stated the matters involved occurred prior to 1929 and the committee had no power to deal with anything prior to the last biennial period.

"Apparently a very loose system of bookkeeping was used prior to 1929 in handling the funds appropriated to this naval unit," the committee reported. "But this appears to have been remedied and there seems to be no complaint of this during the last biennial period."

The charges against the management of the Naval Reserve, which is supported by Federal and State appropriations, were lodged with the committee by H. A. Westing, 3940 Virginia avenue, St. Louis.

One of the matters investigated was a series of warrants for $1,500, drawn on the State from 1921 to 1923, for rent of the unit's quarters, when it was charged, the Naval Reserve used quarters provided by the city of St. Louis, rent free.

Capt. G. F. Schwartz, commander of the unit, told the committee that, while the vouchers had been drawn for rent, the money was used for purposes of the organization. He said that at the time the procedure was thought to be proper, because the organization had expended a considerable amount for alterations and improvements of the quarters provided and "as a purely technical hypothesis, we might say the organization was entitled to rent for the facilities provided."

FORD ABANDONING HIS RUBBER FARMS IN BRAZIL JUNGLE

Too Much Trouble to Overcome Native Resistance to Efficiency Methods.

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 2.—The advice from Para, on the Amazon, said that Henry Ford, after spending millions of dollars, had found himself unable to overcome native antagonism to his efficiency methods and is giving up his huge rubber experiment on the Tapajos River.

Employees on the farms recently have been reduced from 3000 to 200. Some Americans working on the project have resigned while others assigned to an Australian post now are in Para awaiting transportation.

Among the American methods to which the natives objected, it is understood, are punching a time clock, and standing in line with trays for food at the mess hall. Such efficiency methods are unheard of in the tropics.

Eviction of former tenants as clearing proceeded also led to antagonism for the support of the unit was necessary to send police by airplane from Para to quell a crowd that marched on the farm headquarters with pitchforks, guns and farm implements. Recently there was said to have been a mess hall riot with the laborers breaking a quantity of dishes against each other.

American circles here understand Ford thought he had a Federal concession for his rubber farm, whereas it was only a state concession backed by transitory state authorities. The Ford interests spent $30,000 a month for supplies and $7000 for labor.

tee the organization formerly employed a solicitor to obtain contributions from St. Louis business men for the support of the unit and paid him a commission of 40 per cent of the amount collected. He said the Chamber of Commerce later took over the task of raising funds for all military organizations in St. Louis, including the Naval Reserve and all other military funds to the naval unit. He said the unit received about $3000 a year from the Chamber of Commerce.

Schwartz said that prior to 1927 exact records had not been kept of funds received from all sources, but that the funds were spent for organization purposes. He said complete records now were kept of receipts and disbursements.

Recommends Surety Bonds.
The committee recommended that all State officials who are under bond be required to furnish surety bonds the premium to be paid by the State. Instead of personal bonds. It also recommended that banks which are depositories for State departments and institutions be required to furnish surety bonds for the safekeeping of the funds.

The creation of State revolving fund of $1,000,000 to replace buildings destroyed by fire, by setting aside 2 per cent of all appropriations for building purposes until the fund reached $1,000,000, was recommended by the committee. The State now carries no insurance upon most of the State buildings.

Growth of the business of the State departments was indicated by the report. In 1929 the State Auditor audited 10,525 vouchers for all departments. The number has increased each year to a total of 143,401 vouchers in 1930.

RED CROSS FUND PASSES $100,000 MARK IN ST. LOUIS

Speakers on Radio Tell Why Organization Opposes $25,000,000 Appropriation by Congress.

St. Louis contributions to the $100,000,000 American Red Cross fund to prevent suffering and starvation in 21 drought-stricken states passed the $100,000 mark today following Red Cross radio broadcasts, raising the total to $101,139.

Nationwide chain broadcasts have elicited contributions from Mexico and Canada. An Englishman touring Canada sent a $5 check to headquarters in Washington with the note that he was "glad to do his bit."

Midwestern area headquarters in St. Louis announced that 721,000 persons in 709 counties now depend on the Red Cross for food, and, in large measure, for clothing as well. Total relief expenditures rose nearly $500,000 since computation of the figure announced here Saturday to $3,825,130 today.

Representatives of the Red Cross and Community Fund, speaking in the Community Forum broadcast yesterday by KMOX, explained the position of the Red Cross in refusing to accept the proposed $25,000,000 Government appropriation. The consequences of Government charity were described as "dangerous." It was declared that the situation did not warrant "such a grave step." Director Kelo of the Community Fund cited President Cleveland's veto of a bill to provide relief to Texas farmers in 1887, with the message that "Federal aid in such cases encourages the expectation of paternal care on the part of the Government, and weakens the sturdy independence of our national character."

P. H. Byrnes, executive secretary of the St. Louis Chapter, explained that the Volunteer Central Committee, which refused the Senate's proposal, wanted the Red Cross to maintain its freedom of action, and declared, "If Congress alone assumes the task of supplying funds for the Red Cross, Congress will control the Red Cross."

Since St. Louis draws 25 per cent of its wealth from agriculture, St. Louisans are duty bound to aid those who have so largely supported it, Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday.

"It should be to St. Louis' interest, aside from all altruism, to sustain the return of this section to prosperity," said Weisenburger. "We have every confidence that St. Louis will heed the appeal of the Red Cross on behalf of the affected district, to which St. Louis has been a friend and which has been a friend to St. Louis."

St. Louisans are sending contributions toward a $220,000 quota to Oliver F. Richards, Red Cross Treasurer, Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., Eighth and Locust streets.

KENYON CRITICISES BIG BANKRUPTCY FEES

U. S. Appellate Judge Reduces Lawyer's $12,000 Allowance to $2500.

Federal Judges who allow excessive fees for lawyers in bankruptcy and receivership cases were severely criticized in an opinion written by Judge William S. Kenyon of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and filed here today.

The decision reduced from $12,000 to $2500 the fee allowed Brock Cravens, a lawyer of Little Rock, Ark., by Federal Judge Martinus, a former Governor of Arkansas, in the receivership of the Federal Oil Marketing Co. Cravens was counsel for Frank J. Oakes in an intervention proceeding which was dismissed.

"It is not a pleasant duty," Judge Kenyon, "to hold that attorneys' fees allowed by a trial court are excessive, especially in the case of attorneys of high character and ability, but on the other hand, appellate courts should not hesitate in their duty of protecting trust estates from excessive receivership and attorneys' fees."

The decision pointed out that Cravens had received a $15,000 fee in the case prior to the intervention and that, since the intervention, "the greater part of the work had been done by a 25-cent Cooper, who seems to have been a specialist in receivership cases, for whom a fee of $4500 was allowed."

The decision continued: "The $12,000 fee allowed Mr. Cravens is more than the salary of a United States District Judge for a year more than the salary of most Governors or Judges of the Supreme Courts in the respective states of this country. In our opinion, it is so exorbitant, its allowance may be held to be an abuse of the court's discretion."

"That there has grown up a judicial abuse in the allowance of excessive fees to masters, receivers and attorneys in receivership cases cannot well be denied. The seems to have developed an idea that lawyers are entitled to compensation when

382 RAIDS BY POLICE WITHOUT ANY WARRANT

"All on Known Beer Flats or Hangouts," Chief Gerk Informs Governor.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, Feb. 2.—During the last three months, 382 liquor raids were made in St. Louis by policemen operating without search warrants. It was disclosed today in a report to Gov. Caulfield by Chief of Police Gerk.

In every case at least one person was arrested and the aggregate number taken in the raids is estimated at 1000. Two warrants, one of them Federal, have been issued as a result of the raids.

The report, made at Gov. Caulfield's request after members of the Legislature had complained about the alleged violation of the constitutional rights of their constituents, stated that most of the raids are made as the result of anonymous information. Gerk explained that in no case did his men force entrance to a suspected place, and wrote the Governor also that all of the raids were on "known beer flats and hangouts of police characters."

Chief Gerk's report shows that in 223 cases warrants were refused by the prosecuting authorities, usually on the ground of illegal search, that in 14 cases no warrant was applied for and in 145 the police records show no final disposition of the case.

Chief Gerk's figures indicate that the Police Department is becoming less vigorous in its campaign against liquor and gambling law violators.

In the three-month period from July 1 to Oct. 1, 1930, there were 7455 arrests within these two categories, a compilation by the Police Department for the Post-Dispatch had shown. In these raids 79 warrants were issued and 639 refused. In the other cases either no warrant was applied for or no record was kept of the final disposition of the case.

Chief Gerk's report contained a flat denial of the charge circulated by some legislators, that raiding policemen did not confine their confiscation to contraband, but took an occasional radio or bicycle or other object of intrinsic value.

"Our department," Gerk wrote, "does not raid homes and carry off bric-a-brac to sell for the benefit of the Police Relief Association."

Reports from each police station, included in Chief Gerk's letter, revealed that the Eighth, or Laclede avenue station, had the most raids, 80, while the First, or Carondelet, had the least, eight. The Detective Bureau made 9.

Chief of Detectives Kaiser, who delivered the report to the Governor, included a letter of his own, in which he said:

"When reports or complaints are received regarding places known to be beer flats or hangouts for thieves, gamblers and well-known police characters, the officers would not be doing their duty in their failure to make an investigation or of searching such premises, which may result in the arrest of a well-known police character, criminal or fugitive who is wanted."

Two Armed Robbers Enter Dining Room While Receipts Are Being Checked.

Four employees of the Elks Club, 421 Lindell boulevard, were held up in the dining room last night by two armed men, who escaped in an automobile with $346. Members in the recreation rooms were unaware of the robbery until the holdup men had left.

Robert Lietz, cashier, was counting receipts of the dining room at 11:45 o'clock, when the robbers entered through a rear door usually kept locked. They took $215 from the cash register and then searched the "Crown," 421 Lindell, taking $115 and Garretson, 421 Lindell, the same address, who surrendered $110. Sam Wyatt, 221 South Broadway, the watchman, entered the room alarmed, and was robbed of $25.

Backed out the room with drawn weapons, they warned the employees not to interfere with their escape.

Inside Breaks Windows.

58 other robberies with deadly weapons were reported, including that of Earl Crisco, 1401 Newhouse avenue, who was robbed of his machine and $30 after two men forced into his automobile at Broadway and Arsenal street, and forced him to drive to the Tesson road west of the Lemay Ferry road in St. Louis County. A wrist watch was taken from Crisco's companion, Miss Lena Buz, 411 Treadwell street, and they were put out of the machine.

An automobile resembling the one taken from Crisco was reported to have been driven up Washington avenue at a high speed several hours later, one of the occupants to include two men and a woman, time a valley from an automobile pistol which shattered windows at the Holding and Grimm farms, Co. 305 Washington, near the intersection of the two roads, and the driver, 411 Treadwell street, was taken to the hospital.

John Bernheimer, 21, was held up this morning by two Negroes, one of them armed, in his father's retail supply store at 2003 Olive street. They ordered him to take out a bag of money, and he handed them a strap, his feet with wire, and stuffed a towel in his mouth. They left with $20 taken from the cash register and six hand bags.

Arthur Vogler, 3153 Oregon avenue, operator of a one-man Broadway street car, was held up for $10 by two armed men who got on at Base avenue and left the car at North driving away in an automobile, only one passenger was on the car.

Ray Hoffman, 3213 Meramec street, was struck on the head with a pistol by a robber who held him in the rear of his home and demanded money. Hoffman was found to have no money. His injury was not serious.

$100 Taken from Druggist.

William Lupushin, 2307 Goodfellow boulevard, a druggist, was held up for $100 by two men who forced him to take the money from his home.

The bakery of Joseph Imry, 1242 Hodiamont avenue, was robbed of $15.

A safe at the office of the Colonial Atlantic & Pacific Bus Lines, 100 North Sixth street, was found to have been opened this morning and $700 taken, according to the manager Harry F. Jacques of the Marquette Hotel. Police said it appeared that the combination had been worked and later battered to make it appear the safe had been forced open.

Two safes in the Woodworth 5-and-ten-cent store at 500 North Vandeventer avenue were forced open and a $225 diamond ring, the property of a cashier, Miss Floy Hagemeyer, 3848 West Pine boulevard, was taken. The combination was knocked from a safe containing $50 at the Evertz-Eisner Co., 1242 Seventh boulevard.

Two Negroes held up the Hoyle & Hark Clothing Co., 606 North Broadway, at 8:20 a. m. today, taking money from two employees.

Jewelry valued at $200 was taken from the window of the Auker Hoffman Jewelry Co., 3312 South Broadway, by a robber who smashed the window with a brick.

Police were asked to assist in the recovery of a $450 diamond ring reported missing by Dr. Charles P. Stuttle of Stanton, Ill., a guest at the Roosevelt Hotel, 1000 boulevard and Euclid avenue.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Dr. Christian B. Reiser said yesterday that a group of prohibition leaders hope to publish a New York dry newspaper, modeled along the lines of the Christian Science Monitor of Boston. He made the statement in a sermon at Broadway Temple Methodist Church where he is rector, to the prophet Jeremiah as a dry preacher in New York who believes that nullification and not prohibition is the cause of the current situation.

ACCIDENT VERDICT RETURNED IN TWO FATALITIES IN FIRE

Firemen Had Been Accused of Laxity in Fighting Blaze Friday on Shaw Avenue.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today at an inquest in the death of Vincent and Frances Sardo, burned Friday at 5126 (rear) Shaw avenue. City firemen and Fire Department officials defended themselves against criticism by relatives and friends of the Sardos who charged they were negligent and indifferent in handling the situation.

Firemen agreed that flames were leaping from the roof and windows of the two-story frame building when they arrived at the scene and agreed that it was impossible to enter the building until the flames were driven back with water.

Edwin Horton, assistant engineer of Engine Company No. 35, testified the apparatus left the engine house at Sublette avenue and Arsenal street at 5:24 a. m. and traveled 14 blocks to the scene of the fire in not more than four minutes. He could see the blaze several blocks from the scene, he said.

Lieut. John Gartenbach testified that about two minutes were consumed in running out hose from the truck and waiting for water to pass from 450 feet of hose from the nearest fire plug. He testified that he ordered his men to concentrate water pressure on the room in which the Sardos were trapped.

Capt. Joseph C. Nuelle of No. 10's Hook and Ladder Company testified a ladder was carried into the yard but not placed against the building because of the dense fire.

"It would have been death for anyone to try to go in," he said. "One of the men cursed me because I wouldn't send him into the place and I asked, 'Why didn't you go in and get them out before we came?'"

Bernard Doerr, a fireman, testified he entered Sardo's bedroom 15 minutes after the firemen arrived and found it necessary to crawl on the floor because of the heat and dense smoke.

Following the inquest, Fire Chief Alt issued a statement in which he said: "I have always felt since the tragedy that my men did everything humanly possible to affect a rescue of the unfortunate Sardos. After testimony this morning before the Coroner I am now convinced that there was no possible chance of rescuing these unfortunate people, owing to the fact that the fire had complete possession of the building when the firemen arrived. The testimony also brought out that there was not a single moment of delay."

The inquest had been continued from Saturday, when relatives and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Sardo gave testimony that 20 to 45 minutes elapsed before fire apparatus appeared in response to the alarm, that the firemen proceeded leisurely in making hose connections and that they refused point blank to place a ladder or enter the building.

Two Overcome by Gas.

Alfred Johnson, 19 years old, and his aunt, Rosie Cumtara, both of 4957 Palm street, were revived today by the inhalator squad of No. 31 Engine Company, after they were found overcome by gas escaping from a heater in the basement. Both were taken to city hospital.

Five Hurt in Trolley Crash.

Five passengers were injured last night when a Bellefontaine street car ran into another car of the same line, which was standing without lights on West Florissant avenue, near Beacon avenue.

The injured: Mrs. Albert Kopf of Jennings, left hip; Miss Zella Hegan, 8560 Scott avenue, Jennings, back; Mrs. Veronica Malo-bach, 5945 Thekla avenue, bruised leg; Catherine Orrick, 15, 4420 Ravenwood avenue, back; Mrs. May Moelling, 5478 Wren avenue, bruises.

The car without lights was unoccupied.

Trial of Capone Reset.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Trial of "Scarface" Al Capone, gangster and public enemy, on charges of contempt of court was reset today for Feb. 16. The continuance was made because of the illness of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Capone was not in court. A previous arrangement having been made whereby counsel for Capone would be given 48 hours notice before the actual trial. Capone is charged with obtaining a delay for his appearance before the Federal grand jury here under the pretense of convalescence from a serious illness.

SOVIET PAPER SAYS U. S. CAN'T AFFORD TO LOSE RUSSIAN TRADE

Investia of Moscow Comments on "Failure of Anti-Bolshevik Campaign in America."

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 2.—The newspaper Investia, commenting on what it calls failure of the anti-Soviet campaign in the United States, says the United States, passing through a serious economic crisis, "cannot afford the luxury of losing such a potential market as that of Soviet Russia."

"We notice," the article continues, "that official circles in the United States have found it expedient in the interests of Soviet-American trade to remain aloof from the campaign which, if it had been successful, would have brought no less damage to that country than to the Soviet Union."

was "I told him I didn't know about that." Brunk said he was offended by the proposition but that he continued to talk with Britain of the proposal.

Where He Got Money.

On cross-examination Brunk repeated the details of the plan he followed to "trap" Britain. Then Wear asked Brunk where he got the $400 which he said he gave to Britain. Brunk explained he had loaned $150 to a Mr. Walker, another $150 to a Mr. Smith; $75 to a Mr. Sanders, all of which he collected that day. The other $225 he said was his own.

"Did a man named Norwine of St. Louis advance $50 of this," Wear asked. "No, sir, I'm sure of that," was Brunk's reply.

Wear brought into the hearing Brunk's liabilities to the closed State Bank of Aurora by asking where he got $10,000 to pay off some notes in that bank signed by Brunk.

"That's my business," Brunk said. "I insist on an answer," shouted Wear.

Brunk refused to answer, saying he stood on his constitutional right. "You refuse to answer on the ground you might incriminate yourself," suggested Wear.

"No, not that, I'll answer at the proper time."

Sevier objected and Justice Leslie sustained the objection.

Wear shifted the questioning to a visit made to Brunk's office by W. H. Norwine of St. Louis the day before Britain's arrest. Brunk denied any particular relations with Norwine.

"He's a bond salesman," Brunk replied in answer to a question, and added he had been "criticized" because Norwine sold some bonds in the State."

Two 16-Cylinder Models.

Eight-cylinder motors predominate in the passenger car display, occupying the west exhibition building of The Arena group. Only two 16-cylinder types are displayed—the Cadillac models and the new 200-horsepower Marmon. The Marmon has its radiator cap concealed under the hood and is streamlined throughout.

Spare wheels fitting in fender wells are on many of the new models. Stainless steel tire covers relieve conservative body finishes. Instrument boards are simpler. Some of the sport models contain small package compartments at each end of the instrument boards.

Two new makes of cars are on display, the De Vaux Six, a medium-priced machine powered with a Hall motor, and the four-cylinder Mathis, a French type small car manufactured by Durant.

The total value of the exhibits was estimated at $150,000 by R. E. Lee, manager of the show. The passenger car display alone is valued at $250,000. The cars are shown by 29 local exhibitors while there are 10 open chassis, polished to a sheen of fine silver, which came here from the Chicago show on a special train which made the trip in six hours, leaving Chicago at 2:40 a. m. and arriving in St. Louis at 8:40 a. m., in time to be arranged in position when the show opened yesterday afternoon.

Average Price $100 Lower.

The motor world's answer to the business depression is reflected in a $100 lower average price than ever before. The price of the average car last year was $1050. This year, the average model is priced at $950, while there are many cars above and below the average mark, ranging from about $400 to $10,000.

Outstanding mechanical developments at the exhibition, which include 285 automobiles, 65 trucks, besides motor cycles, special bodies and numerous accessories, are freewheeling, synchronized gear shifting devices and improved carburetors, all calculated to promote economy and efficiency of operation.

The bizarre color combinations of recent years are absent. Most models are finished in solid colors, conservative blues, blacks, greens and grays predominating.

Streamline effects, including V-type radiators, are accentuated in even the more inexpensive cars. Stainless steel trimmings enhance the appearance of the machines. Even the trucks, once regarded as strictly utilitarian in appearance as well as use, are finished with a sleekness and grace once apparent only in passenger vehicles.

AUTO SHOW OPENS IN ARENA WITH 285 CARS ON DISPLAY

Attendance 9312 on First Day of Exhibition Sponsored by 29 Dealers—Closing On Saturday Night.

Automobiles ready to roll over the nation's roads, marking the latest developments in the automotive industry, made their formal 1931 debut in St. Louis at The Arena yesterday, marking the opening of the twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association.

The attendance for the afternoon and evening totaled 9312 persons. Visitors began entering the exhibition buildings as soon as the doors were opened at 11 o'clock this morning for the second day of the show.

The exhibition will be open each day from 11 a. m. until 11 p. m., closing Saturday night. Admission is 50 cents. School children and accompanying teachers are admitted free from 3 until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

FOUR DRY AGENTS OUSTED; FAIL ON CIVIL SERVICE TEST

Only Three Who Were on St. Louis Force Three Years Ago Remains.

Four Federal prohibition agents who have failed three times to pass the Civil Service examination, instituted about 18 months ago as a prerequisite for agents, were dropped from the service yesterday.

The agents, who entered the service about three years ago, prior to the introduction of the Civil Service requirements, were Thomas J. Kearney, Fred J. Niebrugge, Charles E. Stanley and Velmer M. Gamble, a Negro. They will be replaced by men on a waiting list who have passed the Civil Service test.

Dismissal of the agents reduces the original prohibition squad in St. Louis of three years ago to three men, Deputy Administrator Dillon and Agents Paul Kelly and Paul Gill. Carol Byrd and Merritt D. Padfield, other members of the original enforcement squad, were transferred to other cities last week.

But two of 14 agents, Byrd and Gill, passed the first Civil Service examination. The time in the service of the others was extended to give them another chance at the examinations. The second test was held several months ago and the final test on Dec. 6.

JURY CHIEF CLERK REAPPOINTED

Amos L. Seaman Has Held Post Since 1908.

Amos L. Seaman was reappointed chief clerk of the Board of Jury Supervisors by St. Louis Circuit Judges today. He has held the position, which pays $3600 a year, since 1908.

His reappointment becomes effective May 1, and is for four years.

style of the period, including dust-ers, checked caps with goggles and hats decorated with ostrich plumes and tied down with gaudy veils. One ancient runabout stalled just beyond the reviewing stand. The driver leaped out, inserted a crank in the side of the machine, twirled vigorously, and in a moment was on his way again.

The first floor sale of the show was made by the Lambert-Tigros Motor Co., 4035 Lindell boulevard, to Dr. O. R. Dobbs, 2435 North Grand boulevard, who purchased an Oldsmobile coupe.

The St. Louis exhibition contains more cars than were displayed at either the New York and Chicago shows and occupies the largest area of any show in the country, Lee said.

The commercial vehicles, including trucks ranging from a police patrol to 10-ton models, are grouped in the main oval of The Arena. Accessories occupy most of the promenade.

11 KILLED BY EATING HOME-CANNED PEAS

Victims Include North Dakota Pair Who Gave Party—
One Seriously Ill.

By the Associated Press.

GRAFTON, N. D., Feb. 2.—Eleven persons, including five members of one family, have died here, victims of botulism, a form of food poisoning.

Home-preserved peas served in a salad, caused the deaths, physicians said.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hein, at whose home near here the salad was eaten during a party Thursday night; their children, Elizabeth, 20, Edward Jr., 15, and Genevieve, 16; Mrs. Thomas Chaputski and her son, Harry, 16; Mrs. Elmer Stokke, Miss Margaret McWilliams, Arthur Jorandry and Arthur Lessard. All lived in this vicinity.

Joe Leach, who also attended the gathering and partook of the salad, is in a serious condition at a hospital.

Dr. G. W. Gaspel, public health officer, who investigated, said all 12 of the persons were first afflicted with dizziness and numbness and all suffered a paralysis of the throat.

The victims became ill late Friday. Three of them died Saturday and seven died yesterday.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will meet at the German House, 2345 Lafayette avenue, tomorrow night, at 7:30 o'clock, to hear a radio program from Washington, D. C., which will be broadcast over a nation-wide hookup of stations.

Speakers will include Paul C. Wolman, national commander of the organization; Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of Veterans' affairs; Admiral Robert E. Koontz and Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania. In communities throughout the country meetings similar to the one here will be held as a feature of the organization's membership campaign.

SAVES 4 GIRLS FROM DROWNING

California Has Them Join Hands, Tows Them Ashore.

REDONDO BEACH, Cal., Feb. 2.—Four girls credit their lives to the heroism of Raymond C. Burns, who rescued them from a tide carrying them out to sea from the beach here yesterday.

The girls, Frances Lightner, 15 years old; Ruby and Mary Kelly, 18 and 16, and Esther Shepherd, 15, were heard only by Burns when they called for help. Burns, after ordering the four to join hands, towed them from deep water by swimming, and collapsed. He was revived by life guards.

ALBERT B. LAMBERT HEADS AIR GROUP OF COMMERCE CHAMBER

George B. Logan, Authority on Aviation Law, Made Vice Chairman of Committee.

Albert Bond Lambert, for whom Lambert-St. Louis Field was named, has been made chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Air Board. George B. Logan, authority on aviation law and a member of important Government and American Bar Association committees on the subject, was named vice chairman.

Lambert, identified with aviation before heavier-than-air craft had been developed, holds license No. 13 as a balloonist, considered the oldest in the country. He has served as president of the Navy League and the Aero Club of America.

LEXINGTON (KY.) BANK CLOSES

It Has Deposits of $2,359,000; Customers to Get 75 Cts.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 2.—Directors of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. voted today to close the depository for "the protection of small depositors."

At the same time the Lexington Clearing House Association, composed of all Lexington banks, agreed to pay 75 per cent of the deposits of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. Officers of the Clearing House Association expressed the opinion the bank would pay out in full. The bank is one of the largest in Lexington. It recently merged with the Commonwealth Bank and Trust Co.

The bank listed deposits of $2,359,667.

Two Children Killed by Explosion.

CUTAHOGA FALLS, O., Feb. 2.—Rita, 3 years old, and Frank Ridenour Jr., 10 months, were killed and their parents and two other children were burned, in an explosion and fire in their home here last night. Bodies of the two children were found by firemen in the kitchen beside the body of a pet dog. They apparently had been killed by the explosion of a kitchen oil stove.

MAN HIT BY AUTO DIES OF INJURIES

Ferdinand De Hatre Succumbs After Being Struck on St. Charles Road.

A man identified as Ferdinand de Hatre, 50 years old, died at Missouri Baptist Hospital this afternoon of injuries suffered last midnight when struck by an automobile on St. Charles Road, near Natural Bridge road. De Hatre was hit by a machine driven by Arthur Fridley, 3906 Lindell boulevard, who took him to the hospital.

George Miller, 49 years old, 308 South Second street, was killed at 1 a. m. yesterday when struck by an automobile at Elm street and Broadway.

He was crossing Broadway. Apparently he became confused and ran against the side of a machine driven north by Frank L. Weldie, 2622 Hebert street, according to Weldie and a companion. Miller was pronounced dead at City Hospital and the body taken to the morgue, where identification was made late yesterday by Miller's widow. His skull was fractured.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned today on testimony that Miller staggered into the side of the machine, which witnesses said was traveling about 25 miles an hour.

An accident verdict was returned also in the death of Charles Ellbracht, 68, 2762 Miami street, who died Saturday night at City Hospital of injuries suffered Dec. 31 when he was struck by an automobile driven by John M. Komo, 50, a machinist, 2154 Sulphur avenue. Witnesses testified Ellbracht stepped out from between parked automobiles.

Two Men Hurt in Collision; Other Auto Accidents.

Max Wells, 32, 5863 Terry avenue, suffered a fractured skull in a collision between two automobiles at Union boulevard and Easton avenue at 6:30 a. m. yesterday. Edward De Lisle, 2647 Palm street, driver of the other machine, was cut and bruised.

Mrs. Gertrude Landon, 47, a Negro, 312 Benton street, suffered a fractured skull at 8:30 p. m. when struck at Chouteau and Theresa avenues by an automobile, the driver of which failed to stop. A short time later police investigating a parked machine at Grand and Lawton boulevards, discovered a hat, later identified as belonging to Mrs. Landon, wedged between the hood and a damaged fender of the machine. A man sitting in the car was taken to City Hospital, where physicians pronounced him suffering from alcoholism. He died having struck anyone. He said he was James E. Shelly, a gas meter inspector, 2608 Rutger street.

Mrs. Margaret Gibbons, 55, 4929 Hooks avenue, suffered fractured ribs yesterday when a machine in which she was riding with her son, William Gibbons Jr., was struck by another car on St. Charles Rock road.

WRIT OF PROHIBITION ISSUED IN EMIL STRAUSS CASE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 2.—A writ of prohibition was granted by the Missouri Supreme Court today on the application of Emil S. Strauss, wealthy retired milliner, forestalling action on the separate maintenance suit filed by Mrs. Morton K. Strauss of the Park Plaza Hotel of St. Louis after he had sued for divorce. The writ is returnable in 30 days.

Mrs. Strauss filed the separate maintenance suit while she had pending an application for temporary alimony and suit money which later was denied. Strauss' attorneys sought to have the separate maintenance suit dismissed, but Circuit Judge Roskopf held that it was properly before the court, although it could not be tried, he ruled, until after the divorce suit had been disposed of.

Steals $10 from Poor Box. CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—Joseph Riger, 70 years old, equipped with an umbrella rib wrapped in adhesive tape, fished $10 out of the poor box in a church before he was detected, the janitor there complained to police. Riger was arrested.

NOTED COACH DIES

DAN SAVAGE.

DAN SAVAGE, EX-COACH AT ST. LOUIS U., KILLED

Fatally Hurt in Fall Down Stairs at Home of Friend in Hamilton, O.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
HAMILTON, O., Feb. 2.—Dan Savage, football coach at Xavier High School in Cincinnati and former athletic coach at St. Louis University, died at Mercy Hospital here late yesterday of a fracture of the skull fractured when he fell downstairs.

Louis Dunivan of Hamilton, an old friend of Savage, at whose home the coach was visiting, reported that when he arose yesterday morning he found Savage at the foot of the cellar stairs, unconscious. He expressed the belief that Savage, unacquainted with the house, mistook the cellar door for the bathroom door, just opposite, and, stepping into the doorway, fell down the steps.

Savage played football at St. Ignace College, now John Carroll, at Cleveland. He came to St. Louis University in 1919 as a teacher of mathematics and coach of the high school athletic teams and produced several championship basketball and football teams. He was made varsity coach in 1923 and held the job through three seasons, during which his football teams met Notre Dame, the Army, Detroit, Carnegie Tech, Iowa and West Virginia.

During his three years as varsity coach Savage's football team won 14 games, lost 12 and tied two. The teams were built around Frank Ramacciotti, one of the greatest backs in the history of St. Louis football and now a lawyer in St. Louis.

In 1923 and 1924 five of the six defeats suffered by St. Louis were administered by major teams—West Virginia and Notre Dame in 1923 and Army, Detroit and Centenary in the following year.

For the last year of Savage's tenure a heavy schedule was arranged, but Ramacciotti, suffering from an injured shoulder, was able to play only a small part of each game and the season ended in disaster. Iowa, the Army, Detroit and Carnegie Tech defeated the team that earlier in the season had gone down before Rolla and Loyola of Chicago.

Savage's basketball teams at the university were signally successful. In his last two years as high school coach his teams won 25 games without a defeat. In two years as varsity basketball coach his teams won 25 and lost only four games, meeting heavy competition.

At the close of the 1925 season Savage left St. Louis University and became coach at St. Xavier's College at Cincinnati. He was succeeded by Bob Mathews, whose place was later taken by Hearthy Anderson. Charles Walsh, the present coach, superseded Anderson.

GROUND BROKEN FOR MEMORIAL PRESBYTERIAN AUDITORIUM

Unit in Gothic Design Will Match
$200,000 Sunday School Building.

Ground was broken yesterday for the $240,000 auditorium unit of the Memorial Presbyterian Church, Skinner boulevard and Alexander Drive, in a brief service attended by 400 members of the congregation and directed by the Rev. Russell Paynter, pastor.

The new chapel, seating 1000 persons, will be made of native limestone in Gothic design, to match a $200,000 Sunday school unit erected four years ago. The building will be ready for occupancy by Christmas.

The Memorial Presbyterian Church was founded 90 years ago, at Fourteenth and Walnut streets. For many years it occupied a building at Washington boulevard and Compton avenue, now used by a Negro congregation.

Correction on Frisco Service.

Acidit

Not Stupidity, Lost

He was a good man, but couldn't do himself justice. Felt as if he were carrying a hidden burden—keeping him mentally depressed. An ambitious man at heart, but lacking the necessary "drive," they thought him "stupid" they had recognized the truth—"Acidity!"

A constant "tired feeling"—a lack of pep, dash and fire—is one of the surest signs of an acid condition. When, as a result of our unnatural living habits, the stomach secretes too much acid, it causes indigestion, fullness, stomach-ache, heartburn and nausea—a condition which in time may result in frequent attacks of indigestion. The acid also sets up fermentation in the intestines. In this fermentation which permeates the blood system. This condition saps strength and vitality which make us feel tired all the time, and mentally depressed, and they rag our nerves to the point where we can't sleep at night, exhausted as we may be.

The modern and true way to correct acidity is by the release of ac-

DAISY DE BOE ASKS COURT FOR NEW TRIAL

Contents Love Messages to Clara Bow Were Immaterial Evidence.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Daisy de Boe began her fight to escape a penitentiary sentence for the theft of $825 from Clara Bow by pleading for a new trial today.

Miss de Boe's counsel, William Biene, contended the introduction in the trial of the love letters and telegrams of the actress had no bearing on what the State said the former secretary stole from Miss Bow.

Biene recounted how Miss de Boe was alleged to have taken the missives from her former employer and how they were returned to the actress' admirer, Rex Bell, shortly after the arrest of Miss de Boe last November.

Biene declared there was not sufficient proof of the offense of which Miss de Boe was convicted and, although she had in her possession some property of the actress, "that should not constitute a presumption that she had stolen it."

The alleged admission of Miss de Boe that she had demanded $125,000 from the actress for return of her letters and telegrams also was attacked as immaterial evidence. Miss de Boe sat in the courtroom beside her admirer, Alfred Mathes. As in the days of the trial last month, a crowd filled the spectators' seats and overflowed into the corridor.

An attempt by counsel to show the verdict of the jury was arrived at "by lot or chance" failed. Judge Doran told the defense he was "not interested in that representation." The attempt followed the summoning of E. W. Smith, one of the jurors, to the witness stand.

"Mr. Smith," Biene asked, "will you state the manner by which the verdict was arrived at?"

"That question is stricken out," the Court interrupted.

An argument of law ended with permission granted the defense to reframe the question: "Was the verdict arrived at by lot or chance?"

Smith said he did not know how to answer the question but at the insistence of the Court that he make some reply he said, "Well, I can say that the verdict was arrived at on one vote."

Biene introduced an affidavit of oral testimony, sworn to by eight of the 12 jurors. After an argument over what part of it could be read, the Court permitted the attorney to read testimony in the affidavit that the count of grand theft on which Miss de Boe was convicted was "selected at random" out of the 35 counts charged against her.

By the Associated Press.
SUPERIOR, Wis., Feb. 2.—Three Duluth (Minn.) youths were drowned and two others swam to safety last night when their automobile crashed through the ice on Superior Bay.

The dead, Andrew Lovelace, Harry Lind and Vern Nielson, driver of the sedan. William Schinnin and William Howalt escaped from the car and clung to the ice until help arrived.

The mishap occurred as the five went to the aid of a truck stalled on the ice. The ice, weakened by unseasonable temperature, sank under the car and carried its occupants down in 15 feet of water.

TOLEDO, O., Feb. 2.—David Braddock, Perryburg, near here, saved the son of a friend from drowning yesterday, but his own son was drowned.

Norman Braddock, 5, and William O'Brien, 7, ventured on the ice on Maumee River in the rear of the Braddock home. The ice gave way and they were plunged into the water 50 feet from shore. Four other children playing on the ice nearer shore ran to the house and notified the parents.

Braddock, 41, ran down to the river. The ice gave way with him 15 feet from where the boys went down. He dived under the ice, reached the O'Brien boy and lifted him to safety. He descended again, but without avail. Some time later the body of his son was recovered by police.

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT: ADDRESS 2101 SOUTH VANDEVENTER, ST. LOUIS

BORAH LINES UP WITH DEMOCRATS ON DROUTH BILL

In short, until the Government has done its duty."

As the last sentence rang through the chamber, applause broke through the crust of Senate custom.

Glancing around him, Borah went on:

"If this means an extra session, then I say let us have it. Let us stay here until every starving woman and every sick child has been taken care of by the Government whose duty it is to care for its suffering citizens. It is not enough to keep them on the verge of starvation. I agree with the speaker at the other end of the Capitol that this is a matter of principle. I accept his challenge to stay here until it is settled."

Follows Caraway Attack.

Borah's eloquent speech followed a bitter attack by Caraway (Dem.) of Arkansas against President Hoover and the House leaders.

Caraway read from the record of Jan. 13, 1919, to show that when the bill to appropriate $100,000,000 for relief in Europe was under debate, Representative Will Wood (Rep.) of Indiana, now the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, moved an amendment to require that the money be spent by the American Red Cross.

He read the list of Republicans who voted for the amendment. Among them were Tilson of Connecticut, the present floor leader; Pease, a Senator from Ohio and the chairman of the Republican National Committee; Snell of New York, the present chairman of the Rules Committee; Dyer of Missouri, Longworth of Ohio, the present Speaker of the House; Gillitt of Massachusetts, now a Senator, and numerous other old-line Republicans.

Questions for the President.

The words and tones of the fiery Arkansas Senator were edged with scorn as he contrasted the action of Tilson and Snell on that occasion with their week-end statements against the $25,000,000 fund.

Turning to the President, he said he had some questions for him, and he wanted them answered in "the President's proper person and not through any unofficial spokesman."

He told how Mr. Hoover went before a congressional committee in 1921 and asked that $20,000,000 be voted from the Federal treasury for the relief of starving Russians.

"He was first a Democrat and then a Republican and God knows what he is now," interpolated Caraway.

Continuing, the Arkansas Senator quoted Mr. Hoover's words in his message to Congress last December, that "no deserving person in the United States must be allowed to suffer from hunger or cold."

No Right to Remain Silent.

"Were you playing politics with human misery when you said that, Mr. Hoover," asked Caraway, "or do you now say that the people who are suffering from hunger in the drouth-stricken states are not deserving American citizens?"

"Tell us what we are if we are not deserving American citizens. We are entitled to an answer, Mr. Hoover."

"The President has no right to remain silent. If he remains silent, the inference is inescapable that he intends to brand hundreds of thousands of American citizens in Arkansas and Kentucky and other states as undeserving."

Caraway read accounts of suffering in Arkansas and then turned his attention to the Red Cross.

"The Red Cross," he said, "is feeding human beings on less than 2 1/2 cents a meal, down to 1 cent, and in many cases it is requiring men to work for 10 cents an hour for 10 hours a day in order for them to get three meals that cost 7 cents."

"I want to ask the Red Cross a question. Did the Red Cross tell the truth in that advertisement of a few days ago, in which it said that thousands of citizens were in distress? If that advertisement is truthful, the Red Cross is not meeting the needs of the hour. And if it is getting money for suffering that does not exist, then it is getting money under false pretenses."

"Mr. Hoover in November, 1921," continued the Senator, "said it was our duty to do the very thing that he now says we must not do. His obedient tools in the House are supporting him."

"Oh, the children who are suffering in Arkansas are just as good as that boy who was born in Iowa, went to England and came back to be President of the United States for a brief time. They have just as much right to live as the grandchildren of the President, with their eight Christmas trees last Christmas."

"Did you mean what you said on Dec. 4, 1930, Mr. Hoover? Or do you now say that these people of Arkansas are bad citizens?"

"I hope that the President will answer, and I hope also that John Barton Payne, the chairman of the Red Cross, will tell the American people the origin of his refusal to accept Federal funds. Before the Appropriations Committee of the Senate he made no such declaration. Who got him to promulgate it? Whose was the brain that dictated it? I don't want him to shunt that question off to an unofficial spokesman."

Caraway recounted vivid instances of suffering in the drouth areas. He told of the plight of his own brother. That reminded him of a contrasting case—the case of the brother of Majority Leader Tilson of the House.

"He was an insurance agent down in Georgia," sneered Caraway, "and he wanted to be made a Federal Judge. We all know Congressman Tilson wouldn't let any man in this chamber have a minute's peace till he got his brother taken care of for life, though everybody knew that the brother was unfitted for the job."

He paid sarcastic respects to Representative Cramton of Michigan, the lame duck who led the fight in the House against the Senate's $25,000,000 amendment. Cramton, he told the Senate, was about to be tucked away in a suit $10,000 berth, as an executive officer of the commission now arranging for the Washington Bicentennial celebration.

Later, Caraway interrupted another debate to insert in the record a compilation which showed, he said, that the Senate's amendment was beaten in the House by lame duck votes.

The Red Cross relief fund today passed the half way mark, the total being $5,069,000.

by the American Red Cross.

He read the list of Republicans who voted for the amendment. Among them were Tilson of Connecticut, the present floor leader; Pease, a Senator from Ohio and the chairman of the Republican National Committee; Snell of New York, the present chairman of the Rules Committee; Dyer of Missouri, Longworth of Ohio, the present Speaker of the House; Gillitt of Massachusetts, now a Senator, and numerous other old-line Republicans.

Questions for the President.

The words and tones of the fiery Arkansas Senator were edged with scorn as he contrasted the action of Tilson and Snell on that occasion with their week-end statements against the $25,000,000 fund.

Turning to the President, he said he had some questions for him, and he wanted them answered in "the President's proper person and not through any unofficial spokesman."

He told how Mr. Hoover went before a congressional committee in 1921 and asked that $20,000,000 be voted from the Federal treasury for the relief of starving Russians.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 2.—An attempt by the State Survey Commission to prevent submission of its $192,000,000 program of increased State expenditures in 12 years to a vote under the referendum provision of the Constitution disclosed in the income tax bill prepared by Representative Langston Jones, K. K. K. and introduced in the House last week.

Jones placed in the bill a section declaring the measure necessary for the "immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety," a provision, which if sustained by the courts, would prevent a referendum.

The survey bills, which contemplate additional taxation of incomes and corporations amounting to approximately $18,000,000 a year, have strong support in the legislature and there appears little question that they will pass the House. In the Senate the vote seemingly will be much closer, but their supporters contend there is no doubt of a majority vote for them there.

Caulfield's Course Uncertain.

Whether Gov. Caulfield will sign the bills if they are passed is uncertain. It is known that he is opposed to them, a position indicated by his message to the Legislature in which he proposed additional taxation to provide $4,000,000 annually, instead of the $15,000,000 advocated by the Commission. Lack of support for his modified plan from business interests, on which the bulk of the taxation would fall under either plan, has disappointed the Governor and recently he has been considering throwing the weight of his influence with the Commission.

He has not adopted the Commission program and probably will do so unless he is convinced that his own proposal will fall because of lack of support from business interests.

He seems determined, however, that there shall be additional provision made for improvements to remedy the disgraceful housing conditions in the penal and almshouse institutions, and to remedy those conditions he is said to be prepared to take the unsatisfactory Commission program if necessary even though it would mean an onerous tax burden for subjects which he does not consider vital at the present time.

Burden on the Cities.

The action of the Commission in attempting to prevent a referendum on the survey bills indicates that its members are confident they have a sufficient rural following, which would escape any material additional taxation, virtually all of which would fall on the five or six larger cities of the State, to pass it in both Houses of the Legislature. Representation of the larger cities in each House is far short of that to which the cities are entitled on a population basis. The proposed scheme attempts to enforce a tax on the cities without giving an opportunity for a vote of the State at large on the proposal.

Under the Missouri Constitution, all bills passed by the Legislature are subject to referendum except appropriation bills for the current expenses of the State Government, for the maintenance of State institutions and for the support of the public schools, and laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety.

Not the Ordinary Clause.

The survey income tax bill does not contain the ordinary emergency clause used to put a bill into effect immediately. That clause requires a two-thirds vote in each House. Instead, it contains the "peace, health and safety" clause, which requires only a majority vote. Its inclusion does not immediately put a law into effect, but it prevents a referendum if upheld.

The inclusion of the provision, however, does not necessarily mean that it will be effective. It probably will mean litigation in the Supreme Court. Ten years ago, when, under the Hyde administration, a series of acts was passed for the consolidation of State departments, the "peace, health and safety" clause was placed in the bills for the same purpose that its use is being attempted at this time. Referendum petitions were circulated and Secretary of State Becker re-

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 2.—An attempt by the State Survey Commission to prevent submission of its $12,000,000 program of increased state expenditures in 12 years to a vote under the referendum provision of the Constitution disclosed in the income tax bill prepared by Representative Langdon Jones of Kennett and introduced in the House last week.

Those placed in the bill as a section of the measure necessary for the "immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety" provision, which it sustained by the courts, would prevent a referendum.

Despite King's Disapproval Swedish Prince Announces Engagement to Commoner

Gustave Calls Lennart's Father to Conference—Entire Country Seems Interested in Romance.

By the Associated Press.
STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 2.—Despite King Gustave's disapproval of his marriage to a commoner, Prince Lennart, the King's grandson, today made formal announcement of his engagement to Miss Karin Nissvandt, daughter of a Swedish industrialist.

It means that he will forfeit his title of Prince and surrender his right of succession to the throne, but as a Swedish citizen, probably with the courtesy title of Count, he will be able to marry the girl of his choice and to build a career as a farmer, a pursuit which long has interested him.

The King, in a communique today, had announced that he would withhold his consent to the wedding.

Prince William, Lennart's father and second son of the King, today returned hastily from a vacation on the Riviera on summons of the King. He and the King held a long discussion.

The entire country seems interested in the romance. No Swedish Prince has married a commoner in nearly 400 years.

Lennart and the young daughter, a prosperous business man first met 10 years ago. At that time the girl's older half-sister married Birger Moerner, the Swedish author, who lived near Prince William's country estate.

The two children became close friends. They attended school in Stockholm and were together so much that their friends spoke of them as "the pair."

Perhaps their common loneliness brought them closer together, for each had lost a mother through divorce—Lennart's mother, the former Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, leaving the country after her marriage to Prince William was dissolved in 1914. (She now is in New York.) The girl's mother was replaced by a step-mother.

Their announcement that they intended to marry caused the aristocracy at the old court to raise its hands in horror, and a tempest in a teapot broke about the heads of the young lovers.

In the communique issued by the Grand Marshal of the Court, it is pointed out that "the Constitution provides that a prince of the royal house shall not marry without the knowledge and consent of the King. Notwithstanding this, Prince Lennart has announced his intention to marry without previously obtaining the King's consent. After earnest consideration, the King has concluded that it is impossible for him to give consent to this marriage."

King Quoted as Assenting if Lennart Waits Five Years.
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 2.—Prince Lennart's romance will come out all right, says a Daily Mail dispatch from Stockholm, if he will wait a bit. The paper quotes King Gustave as saying:

"If, after five years, Prince Lennart insists on marrying Miss Karin Nissvandt, he has my consent."

The Mail also states that Prince William, father of Lennart, referred to Miss Nissvandt as a "charming, good-hearted girl," as he arrived for a family council.

The order was contained in a resolution passed several days ago after release from prison of Mahatma Gandhi and other Nationalist leaders, but was made public only now when it appeared activities were being allowed to lapse.

In effect the move means that Prime Minister MacDonald's offer at the London Round Table conference of an eventual qualified dominion status for India—self-government with important reservations to the British Crown—has been rejected, and that the passive campaign of apathy and non-co-operation, will continue. There is now small chance of Nationalist participation in any negotiations to come.

Other Committee Demands.
In addition to the disobedience clauses of the Congress committee's resolutions, attention is called to the right of the Indian people to the foreign cloth, narcotic and liquor shops without breaking the law. The resolutions expressly affirm the people's right to make their own salt and demand withdrawal of repressive measures against Nationalist activities.

The resolutions seem to indicate that Gandhi and his fellows will be back in prison shortly. Their release was in order that the section of Indian opinion they represent might have an opportunity to voice its reaction to the Round Table conference. Upon leaving Yeroda prison at Poona, Gandhi told officials he probably would be back soon.

Bombay business men are hoping that he and other members of the committee will come there this week for a meeting of the Indian Federated Chambers of Commerce, when the viewpoint of Indian industry that the civil disobedience campaign must be discontinued will be presented to him. Little hope is held of a modification of his attitude.

Severe Communal Riot.
At Rawalpindi a communal riot in which a Sikh officer was burned alive and many persons injured emphasized more than ever before the week-end the difficulty of reconciling various Indian viewpoints. The rioting grew out of a roast beef feast of some Moslems, and the protest of Hindus at the slaughter of a sacred cow. Terrific fighting ensued and a deputy commissioner and police superintendent took a large force into the village.

"It is obvious that a mass movement like the present one cannot suddenly and without reasonable hope of a final peace settlement be stopped nor can it be called off unless hope of settlement is shared by the vast masses of the people," said Gandhi yesterday. "This can never happen so long as the government's repression in its present virulent form continues."

ALLAHABAD, India, Feb. 2.—The Working Committee of the All-India National Congress has ordered that there be no letup in the campaign of civil disobedience. At the same time a demand was made for the release of thousands of political prisoners.

The order was contained in a resolution passed several days ago after release from prison of Mahatma Gandhi and other Nationalist leaders, but was made public only now when it appeared activities were being allowed to lapse.

In effect the move means that Prime Minister MacDonald's offer at the London Round Table conference of an eventual qualified dominion status for India—self-government with important reservations to the British Crown—has been rejected, and that the passive campaign of apathy and non-co-operation, will continue. Gandhi cited numerous instances in which he alleged repressive acts by police, adding: "I don't see how it is possible to conduct peace negotiations with such repressions fouling the atmosphere hour after hour."

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.—Sixty persons were injured, several seriously, in a panic at the Sacred Heart Cathedral in Guadalajara yesterday.

The panic followed the collapse of a building adjoining the cathedral. The noise was audible in the church. Worshippers, fearing that the church was falling in, stampeded for the exits, trampling those who fell. Twelve persons, including women and children, were taken to hospitals.

Suit Over Mansion Offered as Vice Presidents' Home

SUES TO BLOCK GIVING HOME FOR VICE PRESIDENTS

Granddaughter Charges
Mrs. Mary Henderson competent.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—A granddaughter of Mrs. Mary Henderson today went into court in an effort to prevent the aged widow of a former Senator from Missouri from giving the United States a permanent home for the vice president.

The grand-daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean, told the District Supreme Court that she believed Mrs. Henderson's judgment had been impaired by ill health until she was no longer capable of administering the valuable properties left her by her husband, John B. Henderson, and by her son, the late John B. Henderson Jr. Mrs. Henderson is said to be 90 years old.

Mrs. Henderson only a few days ago offered a mansion on Fifteenth street as a permanent home for the vice president.

The District Supreme Court was asked to prevent Mrs. Henderson from alienating any of the real estate belonging to the estate of her husband.

She charged that her grandmother had attempted to deal with the real estate involved under the will of her husband and her son as if it were her own. She said she thought her grandmother had disposed of much of the property.

She also expressed the belief that Mrs. Wholean had used some of the money in purchasing and improving other parcels of real estate which now stand in her own name. One of these pieces of property is the home which has been offered to the Government.

The Court is asked to remove Mrs. Henderson as trustee of the two estates.

HAVANA, Feb. 2.—The Prince of Wales and his brother, George, slipped quietly in and out of Havana harbor yesterday without landing. They did not even appear on deck when the Oropesa anchored, but as the ship left they came from their cabins and waved goodbye to about 2,000 persons, many of them British, who lined the Moro Castle ramparts.

The Oropesa will stop next at Kingston, Jamaica, where an official program of welcome has been arranged.

The British Minister, Thomas J. Morris; the Cuban Secretary of State, Francisco M. Fernandez, and Enrique Soler y Baro, representative of President Machado, visited the Princes aboard ship.

By the Associated Press.
ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 2.—Thirty-two religious reactionaries under sentence to be hanged at Menemen, will be executed immediately after Parliament meets at Ankara to ratify the death sentences of the military courts.

The men are condemned to die on the spot where six dervishes opened the crusade for restoration of the Caliphate, Dec. 23. Those to be hanged include the village tailor, blacksmith, candymaker, butcher and coffee-house keeper, the 63-year-old priest, Ali, and two army chaplains. Funeral services were held yesterday for Sheikh Esad, 96-year-old father of Ali, who died in his prison cell after he was informed that the death sentence had been imposed on him. His son was permitted to attend the funeral.

U.S. GUNBOAT SILENCES YANGTZE BATTERIES

Chinese Bandits Vainly Bombard American Ship With Solid Shot and Iron.

By the Associated Press.
HANKOW, Feb. 2.—The United States gunboat Panay defeated Chinese bandits in a brief fight on the Yangtze River 275 miles above here yesterday.

Neither the Panay nor an American cargo boat the warship was conveying downstream suffered a casualty, although both ran through a hail of solid shot, nails and scrap iron fired from batteries on both banks of the river.

The Panay raked the shores with withering effect and quickly silenced the cannon of the bandits.

Roving bands of so-called Communists have harassed shipping on the upper Yangtze for several months. American, British, Japanese and Chinese shipping has suffered.

The hands were blamed for the predicament of the American freighter Chita, aground in the river below Shashi. The gunboat Oahu hovered near the Chita to prevent Reds from pirating the helpless vessel.

Authorities declared the Chita grounded when it lost its bearings because bandits had removed buoys marking the channel.

American gunboats have been attacked several times, but thus far have always emerged victorious.

Shortly before the attack on the Panay Communists attacked the important city of Yoochow, at the head of Tungting Lake, but were driven off by the city garrison. Three suspected Communists were executed at Hankow.

RELICS OF ANCIENT VILLAGE UNEARTHED NEAR JERUSALEM

Pitchers, Oil Lamps and Bronze Figures Found in Elevation Ramrathel.

By the Associated Press.
JERUSALEM, Feb. 2.—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency says discoveries which may prove to be the key to much unwritten history of the pre-documentary period have been uncovered at Ramrathel, the new name given the elevation near Talpote, a suburb of Jerusalem.

The excavations, under the direction of the Jewish Archaeological Society, besides yielding sarcophagi and ossuaries pointing to the existence of an ancient Jewish cemetery and therefore an early Jewish settlement between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, have brought to light ancient pitchers, oil lamps and bronze figures.

The elevation is strewn with mosaic prehistoric flints and caves with niches, one probably Hellenic, and with megalithic and cultic shrines. A city wall with ramparts and several caves with funeral chambers and galleries with hewn steps leading to them also have been uncovered.

Part of the wall of the ancient city was excavated by Dr. Shick in 1877.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank of New York, predicted today that hundreds of small bank failures would follow a $3,500,000,000 Federal bond issue to defray the cost of cashing soldier bonus certificates.

The financier's warning was given in response to a question in the Senate banking inquiry whether the bonus bonds should receive the same treatment as other Government securities in banking operations.

Mitchell asserted emphatically that "they will have to have all the advantages of Government bonds, plus."

If such a bond issue were decided upon, he added, existing Government bonds would be forced down in price until they were selling to yield 1/4 to 1/2 per cent more than at present. He said municipal, state and industrial bonds would show even greater declines.

Senator Bulkley (Dem.), Ohio, commented that not many persons expected the bonus certificates to be cashed at their face value. A compromise proposal has been

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

La Follette's Warning.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE late Senator Robert M. La Follette, who ran for President of the United States in 1924 on the Progressive ticket, continually warned the people of the trend of monopoly. He stated that the one and dominant issue before the American people was "the curbing of private monopoly." Of course, the financiers and capitalists of industry shouted "Red! Bolshevism! Agitation!" and any other name that would cast anathema and brand him as an undesirable. He saw the present condition coming. He saw the impending doom if steps were not taken to curb the avarice and greed of predatory wealth. We did not heed the warning, but allowed the financiers and capitalists of industry to plunge us headlong into the present turmoil and, as a result, millions of our people are walking the highways and byways in rags and hunger.

More people are today beginning to see that Robert M. La Follette was right. More people are throwing away their superstitions relative to monetary matters and are looking at the economical question with an open mind.

Briland and the Kellogg Pact.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE award of the Nobel peace prize to Briland was really a travesty. It should, of course, have gone to Briland. The whole idea of such a pact as the one outlawing war was Briland's. His proposal when first presented seemed too fantastic for serious consideration, especially by this country, which has for Europe the feminine terror for a mouse. Wonderful to relate, we actually nibbled and swallowed. And then our highly undistinguished Secretary of State suggested that the pact be amended to include all nations. Briland, of course, was delightedly surprised that his novel bait had proved effective and that this warlike of all fish had taken the hook. So, as a reward for this totally unexpected acceptance, Europe, with a confidential wink passed by Briland, the originator of the pact, placed the crown upon the brow of our ex-Secretary. Maybe it will encourage us to strike at the next cat.

The Ralph Sewer Law.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE undersigned noted with interest your fine editorial on the Ralph sewer law in last Wednesday's Post-Dispatch, and the fine news item the previous evening, wherein former Mayor James M. Jensen of Richmond Heights pointed out some of the exorbitant assessments under this law.

The assessments in the Central District show conclusively that the law is the poorest possible way to build sewers, that it is in fact exactly what it was designed to be, a rich pasture for lawyers and engineers. The compensation it affords in lawyers' and engineers' fees is far greater than the engineers and lawyers employed could earn in a lifetime practice of their profession. The fees to lawyers have no limit, anything the supervisors wish to pay. A reading of the law will prove all these contentions as well as many other objectionable features.

I am a considerable taxpayer in the Central Sewer District and am, as are all my neighbors, 100 per cent against this law. It should be repealed.

Mr. Flournoy's Play.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE fury exhibited by some of the amateur dramatic critics against the recent production of Mrs. David Flournoy's play, "Blind," by the Webster Groves Theater Guild, would be merely funny if it were not so manifestly unfair.

The play itself compares favorably with many of the outstanding Broadway dramatic successes of the day. The plot is very modern, reasonable and well elaborated, and the lines are in many places clever indeed. The fact that it was written by one of our own local women should entitle her to congratulations rather than abuse. There was nothing in the play that impressed me as being "dread," "disgraceful" or even in any way objectionable, unless, of course, one considers the fundamental motives that underlie some of our most common domestic problems as in themselves immoral.

The Webster Groves Theater Guild is, indeed, to be congratulated for having in its membership a woman who could not only write such a play but who in addition could give such a splendid portrayal of the difficult role of Sylvia.

ARTHUR M. ALDEN, M. D.

THAT FETTERED GIANT.

There will be no solution of the Muscle Shoals problem in the present session of Congress. On Saturday the conference arrived at an impasse. Responsibility for this legislative failure is charged to the lame duck conferees of the House, Mr. Reece and Mr. Fisher, who insisted on conditions which would have vitiated the plan of Government operation for which its author, Senator Norris, has battled for 11 years. The obstructionists were denounced in a fiery speech by Representative Quinn of Mississippi, who, in his attack included the Longworth-Tilson-Snell machine as the dominating influence in the background.

On Saturday, also, Mr. Coolidge discussed Muscle Shoals in the Post-Dispatch. The management of the property, he said, "demonstrates the utter hopelessness of having any considerable business conducted by Congress." One function of the plant—the cyanamid process for making cheap fertilizer—has been rendered obsolete, or superfluous, he remarked, by science and the development of domestic sources of supply. Insisting it would be "a gross misuse of its powers" for the Government to go into the electrical business, he declared with finality that "the thing to do with Muscle Shoals is to dispose of it to private interests with suitable restrictions."

The first statement of fact may be challenged. There has been no management of Muscle Shoals by Congress, or by anybody. The correct word is mismanagement.

Second, the familiar charge that the cyanamid process is obsolete and that Muscle Shoals has passed out of the picture as a source of cheap fertilizer for the farmer, is contested. Senator Capper of Kansas has pointed out that, in one year while the Government's nitrate plants were idle, the United States imported more than 1,000,000 long tons of nitrate of soda from Chile, for which it paid $36,000,000 at wholesale prices.

Third, the conclusion that Muscle Shoals should be disposed of to private interests. As the Post-Dispatch has repeatedly said, no private interest has made a bid for the property which Congress could justifiably accept or any administration justifiably approve.

The first offers submitted in the early days of Mr. Harding were not worthy of consideration. Then Mr. Ford appeared, and public opinion was instantly charged with hope. Analysis of the Ford bid killed that pretty expectation. It was shown that Mr. Ford proposed to pay $5,000,000 for property that had cost the Government $90,000,000—or six cents on the dollar. Another clause in the contract provided for a lease of part of the property for 50 years at a rental equal to 4 per cent of the Government's investment. When those terms were explained in the Senate by Senator Norris, after the House had passed the bill, an informed public opinion approved the Senate's rejection of the proposition.

All this happened in 1924. A year later Mr. Ford withdrew his offer. Subsequently Senator Norris prepared his plan for Government operation. It was a long fight. At last the Senate was won over, and so was the House. The bill went to the President, Mr. Coolidge, in 1925; he killed it by the famous "pocket veto" after Congress had adjourned. That official action, it seems fair to observe, was in timid contrast to the forthright, but unofficial, opinion of Mr. Coolidge, the journalist.

The scandalous inaction at Muscle Shoals has been costly. In 1926 the Government, using half of its equipment, sold 428,266,000 kilowatt hours of power at 2 mills per hour, at a net profit of $698,839. The Government's profit for three years, ending October, 1928, was $2,000,000. The profit of the Alabama Power Co. on power bought from the Government and resold is said to be $46,000,000. According to the estimate of Judson King, the Government could make an annual profit of $174,000,000 if it sold all the power it could produce at Muscle Shoals at the rates charged by private companies.

It is a miracle plant down there on the Tennessee River. A statistician with imagination has told about the wonders it could perform. It could dig a Panama Canal in 40 days. Thrown into the Mississippi Valley it could deepen the beds and raise the levees of the Mississippi and its tributaries to prevent all floods. It could, within a year, cut a channel 600 feet wide and 28 feet deep, large enough to take ocean-going steamers from St. Louis to the Gulf of Mexico. It could electrify 3,000,000 farms—more than seven times the present number of our electrified farms. It could light 6,000,000 homes—more homes than are wired for electricity in our three most populous states of New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois. A billion cubic feet of water can be dropped through the gates of the dam every second—three times the maximum discharge of the St. Lawrence River at the international section.

That is the giant which has been fettered so long by the selfishness of private interests and the archaic politics and doctrinarism of Washington.

QUOTING ANTONY.

Congressman Fish's feelings have been hurt. And no wonder. After his patriotic committee found out all about the Red peril, the people, instead of being grateful for the public service, either laughed or turned a deaf ear. Concerning the clergymen who are sympathetic with the experiment in Russia, the grandson of Grant's calm Secretary of State said with his usual remarkable tolerance: "I have more respect for atheists." With newspaper editors who have been unfair in their review of the committee's work, Mr. Fish is even more hurt. Said he: "I am not disturbed because editorial writers do not understand the facts. I have been in politics too long to be much worried by criticism of the press." There is, however, one real rub, and Mr. Fish can't help complaining just a little. "I must say," he lamented, "that I dislike being criticized by Republican newspapers." We submit that is sorely trying. To have one's own receive him not is the most unkindest cut of all.

THE MAN WHO RESCUED NOBIL.

Capt. Einar-Paál Lundborg fought in the German ranks in the World War, directed tanks of the Finnish Army against Russia, faced Soviet troops under the Latvian flag and then took a peaceful post in the Swedish air force. Yet in all his adventuring he never had a share in making history until in June, 1928, he needed his plane to rest on an ice floe and took off Gen. Nobil, marooned there with the remnants of his North Pole expedition after the crash of the plane. On the return trip Lundborg damaged his plane and had to wait several weeks with the marooned men for rescue. For taking off Nobil, Lundborg found himself honored as an intrepid airman, but embroiled in one of the bitterest feuds in aeronautical history. The question of why Nobil was taken off first while wounded men remained on the ice became almost greater than the reasons for the loss of the Italia. Lundborg bore up well in the resultant inquiry, explaining that he had no choice in selecting his passenger. The investigators stripped Nobil of rank and reputation and reduced him to ostracism. Lundborg's fall to death while testing a Swedish plane comes as a tragic reminder of the Italia episode.

MR. HOOVER AND WAGE CUTTING.

Should the United States lower its standard of living as a means of relieving the depression? Mr. Hoover has answered this question with a resounding No. Speaking before the American Bankers' Association in Cleveland last Oct. 3, he took cognizance of such a suggestion made on its convention floor the day before, and departed from his set speech to say:

I do not accept such a theory. . . . Any retreat from our American philosophy of constantly increasing standards of living becomes a retreat into perpetual unemployment and the acceptance of a cesspool of poverty for some large part of our people.

Wage cutting obviously would be the first and most direct step in the direction of lower living standards. Not only by the inference in his Cleveland speech but in a later declaration, Mr. Hoover has gone on record against the practice. On Dec. 23 he told the press that the Government's policy in its contracts was to require that wages "be held up to the standard existing in the district where the work is done." The various departments had received orders to this effect, he said. Now an executive of the American Federation of Labor reports that the pledge has been violated. He bolsters his charge with more than 20 specific instances of wage reduction on Government contracts. Senator Capper, Representative Kvale and others come forward with corroborative detail. Inquiry at several Government departments discloses that they have received no order to require standardized wages on Federal contracts.

The Government's building program in which this situation now is disclosed was adopted to aid the unemployed and to set a heartening example for private employers. The example it actually sets, on the contrary, tends to create the "cesspool of poverty" which Mr. Hoover says he fears if standards are reduced. By slashing wages, contractors are enabled to swell their profits even to the point of profiteering—at the expense of their Government and, worse, at a sacrifice exacted from the worker. Mr. Hoover's philosophy as publicly expressed is highly commendable. It is deplorable that executive action apparently has not followed executive expression. Such orders failing, Senator Davis' bill to require payment of the current scale should be speedily enacted.

MR. EROS PASSES BY.

The world had a most distinguished caller the other night. He came under cover of darkness, and, as is his custom, stayed only a short time. At midnight little old Mr. Eros, the aristocrat of the asteroids, was but 16,260,000 miles distant. Ordinarily he is twice that far out beyond Mars. One thing that never can be said of Eros is that he comes too often or hangs around too long. His next real visit will not be until 1975, when babies born today will cut cakes with 44 candles. Most of us didn't give much thought to Eros' coming, but our reception committee attended to it with finish and courtesy. All over the globe they rode telescopes into the galaxies to bid him welcome. Nor was it solely a matter of universal good will which prompted them to give up a night's sleep—they had an ax to grind. For Eros' wanderings are so greatly magnified by his nearness that he will in time give an accurate value of the earth's mass in terms of the sun and hence of the sun's distance. Today finds him winging his angular self away from us as fast as he can, but man's knowledge of the universe is enriched because the haughty little fellow condescended to notice us at all.

ANOTHER VOLSTEAD ATROCITY.

Another atrocity in the name of St. Volstead has been revealed in its true light by the test race between the Josephine K., Canadian rum runner, and Coast Guard cutter No. 145. Boatswain Karl Schmidt, in charge of the cutter, who fired on the rum ship last Saturday and killed its captain, testified he was forced to do so because the Josephine K. was drawing away from him and he feared she would escape. The test race showed the cutter to be faster than the rum ship. In a three-mile race the cutter gained half a mile, and their respective speeds were 11.15 and 9.55 knots.

Granting the Canadian ship was violating the dry law, nevertheless death is a drastic and unwarranted penalty for such violation. Moreover, such incidents frequently give rise to grave international complications. In 1912 the United States fought a war because of British interference with our shipping, and we may have to fight another one as a result of the rash use of artillery by ardent young Coast Guardsmen. The fact that Schmidt was upheld by a Coast Guard investigating board does not satisfy public opinion. It regards the board's action as just another application of the whitewash brush.

BACK TO PANTOMIME.

A six-line item from Reno mentioning the name of Kathryn Williams is a reminder of how quickly fundamental changes have taken place in the movies. If memory serves, it was Miss Williams who played in the first serial, "The Adventures of Kathlyn," a thriller if there ever was one. Scenes, for the most part, were in Indian jungles and Hindu palaces, and never an episode closed but that the heroine was about to be pounced on by a leopard or lef in the clutches of a swarthy turban wearer. Lions stalked the nearby brush, bushes of rubies and emeralds were continually being stolen, long daggers were always near at hand. The race was to the swift—and clever—as the opening moments of each episode proved. From one installment to the next were two dragging weeks—the show man said it took that long for them to come from India. Since the nights of Kathlyn's adventures with the wild beasts of the nickelodeon, the hair-raising weekly serial has come and gone and with it many another device of the films. Notably, the silent screen has found that it has vocal cords. In this connection it will be of more than passing interest to see how Charlie Chaplin's new silent production, "City Lights," is received. For all the possibilities of talking pictures there still should be first-class entertainment in well played pantomime.

A RELUCTANT PAYING TELLER.

Business Methods in Treating Disease

After 11 years, Chicago Public Health Institute, which treats social diseases on a low cost efficiency basis, is completely successful; in 1929 it gave 467,688 treatments at an average cost of $1.47; Institute has a surplus of $1,000,000 and has contributed over $500,000 for research, philanthropy and education.

Mary Ross in the Survey Graphic.

ON Washington's birthday 11 years ago a young doctor had a sign painted on the door of a little back office in one of the busiest streets of Chicago's Loop. The office and treatment room were staffed only by the doctor and a secretary. The sign, however, bore not his name, but the impressive title, Public Health Institute. From that beginning has come what now is the largest clinic in the world for the treatment of venereal disease. During the 10 years ending Dec. 31, 1930, it cared for 172,753 patients. What is more, through it has been evolved a demonstration in organization for medical care which has attracted attention the country over; which has, at times, drawn storms of criticism, and now serves to point up some of the questions that perplex both doctors and patients.

Before the war Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz had been a private physician specializing in the treatment of venereal disease. He knew, from his own experience, how essential it was for these patients to get adequate treatment, for their own sakes, for their families' and for the benefit of city and state, which would have to bear the eventual costs for many if they went untreated to spread their infection to others and finally became chronic wrecks in almshouses, hospitals and institutions for the insane. He knew, from their stories, how the patient shrank from having other people suspect his ailment and often squandered his time and money and health by trying self-treatment, or the advice of the corner druggist, or relying on the specious promises of quacks who advertised their claims and seemed to give a ready answer to the questions a patient would not ask his friends nor admit to his family. He knew, also, how hard it was for many people, when they had found an able doctor, to pay for the many visits and expensive drugs required for the treatment of the venereal diseases over the long period of time necessary in some cases to effect a cure; and how impossible it was, on the other hand, for the doctor, working as an individual, to cut these costs and still make his ledger balance at the end of the year.

Dr. Berkowitz came back to Chicago from war service determined to find some way in which ordinary people "in numbers" could get access to good medical treatment when they needed it, as the troops had done. Here he found others who accepted his beliefs and ideas. A group of Chicago citizens agreed to help him establish a self-supporting clinic for the treatment of venereal disease, and joined him in guaranteeing a fund of $25,000 to meet expenses until it could get on its feet.

The Public Health Institute was organized in the winter of 1919-20, first in the form of a business corporation; then almost immediately reorganized on a non-profit basis without capital stock, the usual form for a hospital or philanthropic institution. Its aim was not to reach the destitute, however, but to give treatment at the lowest cost compatible with self-support and high medical standards. The trustees shared the director's conviction, which experience has justified, that wide publicity through the newspapers would help awaken public concern for the treatment and control of syphilis and gonorrhea, would impel many persons suffering from these diseases to seek care and lead them away from quacks and from bottled cure-alls.

Routine questions of names, age and address are asked. Nothing about income. If the admitting social worker, explaining the Institute's system of fees, finds that the prospective patient cannot afford to pay anything at all, he is referred to the clinic of the Illinois Social Hygiene League, to the support of which the Public Health Institute has given $12,000 a year out of its surplus and the use of many of its facilities for the care of non-paying patients since November, 1927. If he registers at the Institute, he receives a number under which all subsequent entries are made. When he comes for another visit he asks for his record card by number; no names are used within the clinic, and the doctors do not know, by name, whom they are treating.

A very complete first examination including the necessary laboratory tests is $3 and subsequent treatments or consultations $1, with other fees for special services and drugs. The average cost of a visit to the Public Health Institute, including drugs, special examinations and the like, is $1.47. Comparison with the amounts that patients pay to private physicians for similar treatment was made in a study last winter by Dr. Thomas Parron Jr. A year's treatment of syphilis at the Institute's rates would be approximately $185, while at the lowest rates of a general practitioner it would amount to $332 and at medium private rates, to $525. Eight weeks' treatment for an acute case of gonorrhea at the Institute costs approximately $57 including drugs; while the corresponding figures for minimum and medium private rates would be about $109 and $158 respectively.

Each of the departments at each clinic has its individual waiting room from which patients go by turn to the individual examining and treatment rooms. These latter are rather cubicles, enclosed on three sides, with a door to a corridor or the waiting room; while the opposite end is open to an inner corridor along which the individual doctor can pass from one patient to another, conserving their own and the patients' time. A long shelf under the windows along this inner corridor holds many sets of the instruments or other supplies which the doctors may require. Through this arrangement as many as 48 patients may be treated at one time in the men's clinic alone without delay or loss of privacy. In 1929 the Institute gave 467,688 treatments, or an average of a little more than 1500 a day, and registered an average of 40 new patients a day, 11,237 for the year; a long road from the first year—1920—when daily treatments averaged 77 and new patients not more than five.

How the Institute has been able to lower costs by the bulk of its purchasing power and tenacity and ingenuity in purchasing is shown in the tale of sandalwood oil capsules, one of the drugs it uses in quantity.

At first the price paid to American manufacturers was $23 per thousand. Then it was found that by buying direct from Germany, the capsules could be had for $14 per thousand. Confronted by the loss of his orders, an American manufacturer met the German price, and again for some time, capsules were bought in this country. Then when it again became time to renew the contract, the American price again rose, and miraculously enough, at one time rose each of the competing firms came a bid precisely the same amount. So back went the contract to Germany, and the German manufacturer, on the strength of it, began American machinery for making the capsules so that his product would be produced the same as that to which the Institute doctors were accustomed.

Since the first year the income of the Institute has exceeded its expenses. All bills had been paid on Jan. 1, 1929 (including of course, salaries to its staff of more than 80 persons, among whom are full-time and four part-time physicians) operations over a period of 10 years and 10 months showed an invested surplus of approximately $1,000,000. Out of surplus earnings, moreover, the Institute has contributed approximately $315,000 for research, philanthropy and education in the field of venereal disease.

In 1929, the last year for which detailed figures are available, these grants and the Institute's free services to its own patients to Public Health Institute, as follows: To the University of Chicago for research, $12,000; to the Illinois Social Hygiene League and to the Illinois Social Hygiene Council for educational and educational expenses, $6154.00; to the Luke's Hospital for free treatment of venereal disease, $12,000 each; and for the treatment given at the Institute itself, $15,524.40. In a little less than 11 years the Institute has paid out $1,090,000 in medical salaries, probably a relatively larger amount to the medical profession, taking into account and expenditures into account, than could be shown by any medical institution of philanthropic or public nature.

This record is one of which a public man might well be proud. The Public Health Institute started without capital except the guarantee fund of $25,000 apportioned which $11,000 was contributed by the year. By the end of the second year there was more than $17,000 cash on hand, and then it has increased its plant space, fold, made donations which have no analogue in the usual balance sheets of corporations, provided its "customers" with more reasonable service than they could get elsewhere, and accumulated a very large surplus to offset depreciation and safeguard its continuance.

A more balance sheet, however, is an adequate record, especially for an organization concerned with so important and delicate a service as the care of the sick. What is the quality of medical service the Institute has given to this enormous group of patients? An answer to this question was given unequivocally a little more than a year ago when three eminent specialists in the treatment of venereal disease were invited to visit the Institute and appraise its professional work.

They agreed jointly that the service of the Public Health Institute, while of lower grade than the best university clinic, is superior to the average public clinic, and that the Institute "had demonstrated the possibility of giving efficient diagnosis and treatment on a large scale on a more economic basis than has been possible elsewhere."

A Good Yarn

UP THE LADDER OF GOLD—By

E. Phillips Oppenheim. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston. 32c.)

PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM is a master industrialist in the business of building yarns that will satisfy the trade, and certainly no disreputable is to be read into the statement. He is not obliged to descend to vulgarity for his interest since he always has an ingeniously conceived tale to tell, one well calculated to lift his readers for a world of every day humdrum without crippling them for ordinary living. Oppenheim is a shrewd practical psychologist, his knowledge of the human mind appearing less in his treatment of characters than in his choice of characters and situations with reference to his readers' secret and defeated yearnings; and it is probable that he has more men than women readers.

In "Up the Ladder of Gold" the ridiculous emphasis commonly laid upon the feminine is lacking. Nobody seduces anybody, no bedroom secrets are aired, and although two secondary characters do get married, the fact is taken for granted and is not allowed to check in the least the flow of the story.

In the first place, the tale is concerned with a well-advised subject, universal peace. In the second place, the hero is the strong and silent man in excelsis, so marvelously gifted that he thinks nothing of "making" millions of dollars in a day, so shrewd that he knows everything before he is told and so cannot be frustrated in any of his schemes; and so powerful that the greatest financiers and statesmen of the world shudder at the mention of his name. And what is best of all, he does everything that he does for the good of the world. Imagine how a grateful clerk afraid of losing his job might luxuriate in the advance of such a dream.

Warren Rand, the hero, has made up his mind to end war, and so feeling about it. Some years before the tale begins he was already by far the richest man in the world and since then he has been cutting and stacking the world's kais at the rate of many millions a day. He now really controls the world's finances, although practically nobody is aware of the fact. (Miraculous, of course, but our clerk is having a lovely dream.) Rand can beat the stock market down at any moment so that the whole list looks like a mass of incredible misprints, and the next day or so he can make the market go through the roof, fancy what a man so gifted could do to the money kings!

First, Rand buys up practically all the important newspapers in the world, thus controlling the text he deliberately goes about Outgrowing her baby plumpness?

Give her
Bottled Sunshine every day

"She's growing rapidly, and she needs special help," experts on child care tell mothers.

To develop a fine, sturdy, well-proportioned framework which will take care of her extra inches, one factor in particular is necessary.

This is the important bone-and-tooth building factor—Vitamin D. Vitamin D may be obtained from two plentiful sources—sunshine and good cod-liver oil.

Sunshine would supply your child with Vitamin D if she could get enough on her bare body every day. But clothing, bad weather, even window glass shut-out the protective "Vitamin D" rays of sunshine.

That is why it is so important to give her Bottled Sunshine—good cod-liver oil—every day. Then you know she is receiving the help she needs to develop her bones properly.

In addition to Vitamin D good cod-liver oil, like Squibb's, is also very rich in Vitamin A, the factor which aids growth and helps to protect against colds.

Laboratory tests enable Squibb to guarantee the richness of their oil in these two factors—Vitamin A and D. It is vitamin-tested and vitamin-protected.

Get the guaranteed, vitamin-rich oil for your child, Squibb Cod-Liver Oil Give it to her every day. All reliable druggists have it.

WHEN CHILDREN FRET

MANY things can make a youngster fretful—sluggish bowels; a touch of colic; when teething or at other trying times. But there's only one remedy a mother should ever use to comfort an ailing child in any of these conditions, Castoria!

This pure old-fashioned remedy most mothers have learned to depend on, comforts a child like nothing else. It has an important place in five million modern homes where mothers keep it always on hand, so they will be ready to render first aid when a child is ailing.

Watch your child's tongue; when it is coated, or whenever the breath is unpleasant, let this pure vegetable preparation come to the aid of that sour stomach or inactive bowels.

The beauty of Castoria is that it can be given as often as needed. It contains no harmful ingredients. The recipe on the wrapper tells you how mild and bland it is. It is a children's remedy, made especially for the children. Ideal for infants—yet effective in larger doses for a child in his teens.

Genuine Fletcher's Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

STABS MAN TO DEATH

IN FIGHT OVER LIQUOR

Edward O'Toole Says William Brazzil Attacked Him for Not Offering Drink.

William Brazzil, 1344A Morrison avenue, died at City Hospital early today of a stab wound suffered some hours earlier in a quarrel over a drink of 25-cent-a-pint whiskey.

Edward O'Toole, 624 South Broadway, was arrested, charged with the stabbing. Suffering from scalp wounds when taken into custody, he told police he purchased four pints of whiskey for $1 in a saloon near Broadway and Clark avenue and gave drinks to several acquaintances. Brazzil, who was not offered a drink, took offense and hit O'Toole on the head with a pocketknife and stabbed Brazzil.

SAYS BONUS PLAN WOULD RESULT IN BANK FAILURES

advanced as a solution for the controversy over cash payments. The plan would call for an outlay of approximately $800,000,000 and would provide additional loans on bonus certificates with a maximum of 52 per cent of indebtedness instead of the present limited 22 per cent.

There are indications the proposal will receive the support of members of the House who have opposed such legislation. If proponents of full cash redemption will not seek additional payments. Representative Patman of Texas said today that Senator Vandenberg (Rep.) of Michigan had expressed the opinion after a White House conference that an increase by 50 per cent of the loan value of the certificates and a reduction in the interest would meet the approval of the administration.

"While most of the advocates of the compromise have discussed it quietly," Patman said, "I have definite information that they would be only too willing to accept such a compromise. It would please Secretary Mellon and the administration, I know. The proposal has been discussed with nearly all of us who are advocating a 100 per cent cash bonus."

Proposes 50 Pct. Loan.

Senator Vandenberg has proposed a measure allowing loans up to 50 per cent face value of the certificates. This ultimately would involve a total outlay of $1,700,000,000, if all veterans took advantage of it. The government already has a $700,000,000 fund for this purpose.

Meanwhile, George W. Shaller, Iowa banker, suggested the increasing of loans on veterans' certificates for relief of pressing need. He testified before the House ways and means committee.

Investment Bankers Assail Bonus Payment Plan.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 2.—Maintaining that the temporary relief that would be produced for some of the American people by the immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus would be detrimental to the recovery of the prosperity of the nation as a whole, the board of governors of the Investment Bankers' Association of America went on record yesterday as opposed to the legislation now pending in Congress toward that end.

The opposition was recorded in a resolution unanimously approved by 40 representatives of many of the leading banking houses of the country. The action was taken at the board's annual mid-winter meeting. Henry T. Ferris of St. Louis, president of the association, presided.

Discussion of the soldiers' bonus question featured the sessions of the meeting, which opened last Friday. The bankers' representatives held that the association, as a whole, "heartily subscribes to the constant effort of the American people to show adequately its appreciation of war service, but at the same time holds that the cash payments this year of compensation for war service would serve to retard the efforts now being made to place general business in the United States on a sound basis, thereby opening the avenues of employment."

Discussing the action of the board of governors, Ferris said: "The grave nature of this situation can scarcely be over-emphasized. At the direction of the governors of this association, I have asked for a hearing before one of the congressional committees and have been authorized to appoint a delegation of representative investment bankers to appear with me before that committee. As the members of this association were largely responsible for the successful organization and conduct of the operations of the Liberty bond and Victory note distribution which financed the world war, there can be no doubt that they are in a position to judge this situation as accurately as anyone and to measure its very probable and destructive eventualities."

"This is the business office; Miss Conway speaking."

Just that phrase, in your telephone receiver.

But Elizabeth Conway, clerk at the telephone office, is much more than merely a pleasant voice. With her soft, dark hair and straight, slender shoulders, she is a sort of "engineer" who sets in motion the vast organization of the telephone company, to give you service.

For see what happens when she answers your call:

"What is your telephone number, please?" she asks. Then, with a quick turn in her chair, she draws your telephone card from a circular file behind her, glances at it swiftly. A question or so, and she knows your new address, has told you when to expect a man to put in the new instrument.

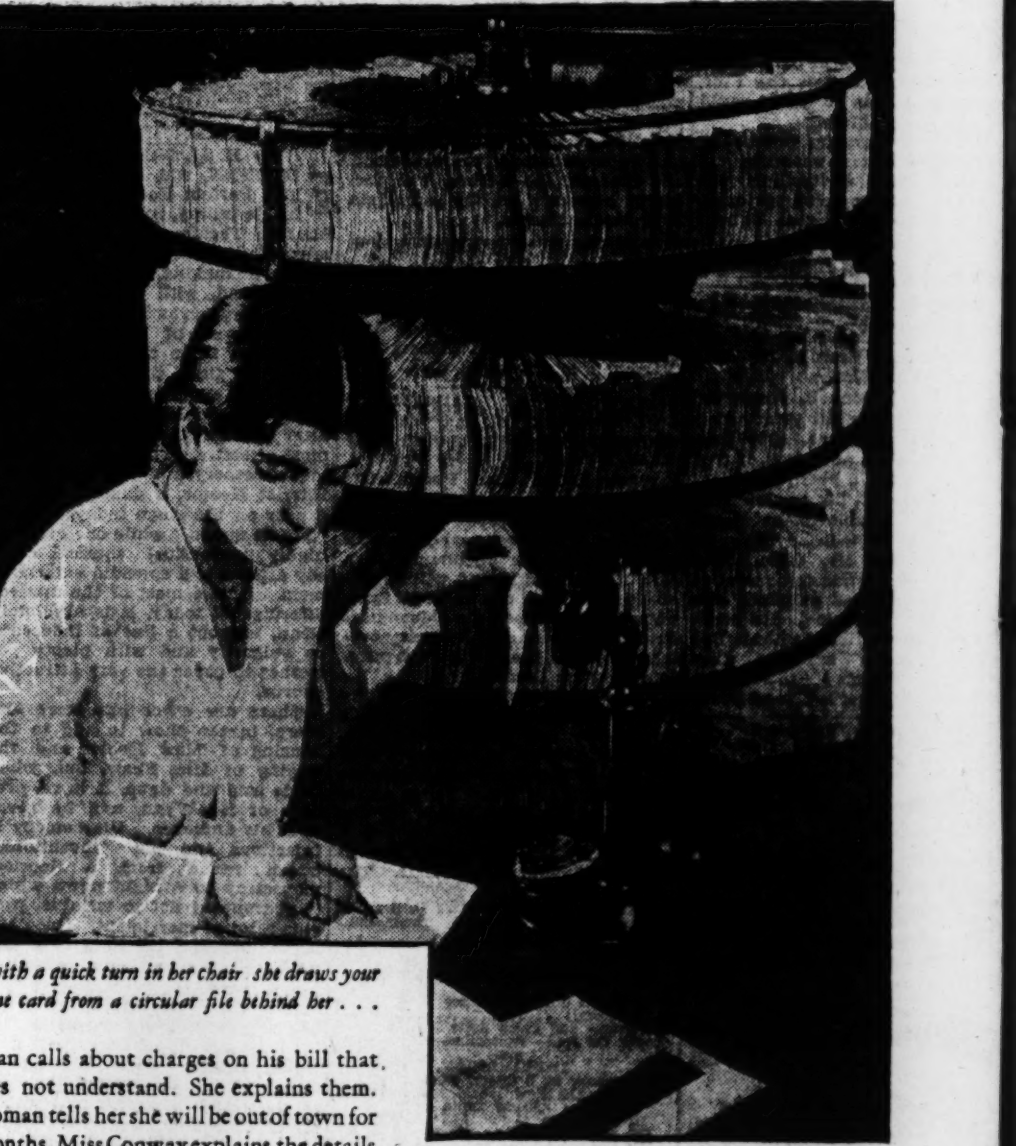

Daily, from mansions, from cottages, from stores and offices throughout the city, voices pour out their problems to her.

A man confides that his wife is home from the hospital, with an eight-pound baby!

"Congratulations!" smiles Miss Conway, rapidly writing down his name and address.

"A girl—how nice! You will need a telephone."

A voice asks for a list of long distance calls placed over his telephone. Miss Conway looks them up.

Then, with a quick turn in her chair she draws your telephone card from a circular file behind her...

A man calls about charges on his bill that he does not understand. She explains them.

A woman tells her she will be out of town for two months. Miss Conway explains the details of "vacation half rates"—makes out an order.

Here is the responsibility of seeing that, for you and for each of these persons, the wheels of the telephone organization start turning, to give you the service or the information you need.

Her neat memorandum may set a clerk in a far department searching records for a pair of wires for a new telephone, and a number that can be given it.

...may start skilled workmen hunting these wires on the massive "frames" of the telephone exchange, where thousands and thousands of tiny wires—"voice paths" of the telephone system—are ranged in orderly ranks.

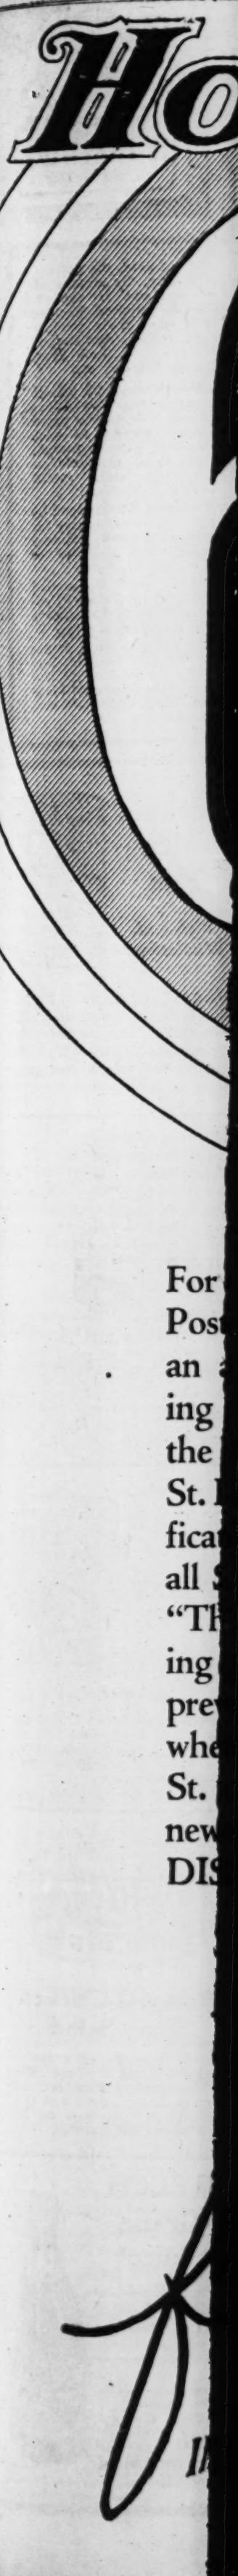

...may set a girl to work recording a new number in the exhaustive directories, kept constantly up-to-date, in which "Information" finds the answers to her daily flood of questions.

Her work ends only when your request has been cared for to your satisfaction—your problem smoothed out and solved.

Here at her desk in the business office—talking quietly into her telephone, jorting down notes with quick, sure fingers—she is "at the throttle" of the telephone organization. She starts the wheels moving to give you telephone service that, as nearly as possible, approaches the Bell System goal: "...a telephone service for the nation more and more free from errors, imperfections, and delays, and always at a cost as low as is consistent with financial safety."

NATION-WIDE STORES Recipe CONTEST

MORE THAN $3,000.00 in Cash Prizes!
JUST WRITE A RECIPE

Here Is Your Opportunity to Earn a Cash Prize Each Week . . . and to Be Among the Grand Prize Winners. A Cook Book for Every Participant.

Fun, writing recipes! It is a pleasure to make up these attractive food combinations. With money for doing something you like to do. Simple, too! Imagine if you can, being winner of one of the 30 prizes offered each week. Or you may experience that happy surprise of being the winner of the grand prize of $500.00. Someone will get it. Why not try for it? Take a few minutes to think out a prize winner. Send it at once. Look for next week's contest—try again. Interesting, isn't it?

These grand prize awards will be made at the end of the 20 weeks. All the weekly awards will be made as soon as the judges announce the winners. Regardless of whether or not you win a prize, you will receive one of the cook books containing the recipes of the 1st, 2d and 3d weekly prize winners if you enter the contest with a recipe. See the list of cash prizes. Read and follow the rules—that is very important. Your recipe must include Hardy's Iodized Salt, the article featured this week. Address your recipe to: Recipe Contest Dept., Nation-Wide Stores, 8th and Clark Av., St. Louis, Mo.

RULES OF CONTEST

1. Address all communications to the Contest Editor, Nation-Wide Stores, 8th and Clark, St. Louis, Mo.
2. The Contest is open to all women and will run for 20 consecutive weeks, beginning Monday, January 26, and ending the week of June 7, 1931.
3. The Contest is open to all except the employees of the Nation-Wide Stores and their families, or any employee or his family of the firm whose product is the prize subject for this week.
4. Every woman is eligible to submit a recipe each week. You can win a prize each week.
5. Write a recipe including Hardy's Iodized Salt, which is the prize subject for this week.
6. In your recipes, specify the amount of each ingredient used, the process of mixing, the manner of serving, and if cooked, the time required. Recipes must mention product used, such as Aro Butter, Hardy's Salt, Jack Frost Baking Powder, etc.
7. Write clearly, with pen or pencil or type your recipes on one side of the paper—one recipe to each sheet. Be sure to include your name and address ON THE SAME PAGE with your recipe.
8. Recipes will be judged by the food manufacturer for originality and culinary merit. The decision of the judges is final.
9. Recipes must be mailed by midnight Friday, February 6th, to be eligible for this week's prize.
10. The prize winning names on Hardy's Iodized Salt will be posted in all Nation-Wide Stores on Monday, February 16th. Watch for them!

When you remove Bacterial-Mouth

DULL teeth that are ugly, yellow and decayed, and receding gums are enemies of beauty, health and happiness. They are tell-tale signs of a condition offensive to all of us—and inexcusable. Germs sweep into the mouth, with every breath and attack teeth and gums. They cause the condition known as Bacterial-Mouth. But Kolyne quickly conquers this foe by killing the germs. The result is astonishing. Use the Kolyne Dry-Brush Technique for 3 days—a half-inch of Kolyne on a dry brush, morning and night. Then look at your teeth—fully 3 shades whiter. In 10 days the improvement will be so marked you will never again say that white teeth are a gift received only by a fortunate few. Dentists have long advocated the Dry-Brush Technique as the one way to use a dental cream full strength and clean every tooth surface and massage gums properly. Kolyne permits this approved technique. This highly concentrated, double-strength dental cream is unique in action. It multiplies 25 times when it enters the mouth—thus a half-inch of Kolyne is equal in effectiveness to 12 inches of the ordinary toothpaste. It becomes a surging, antiseptic FOAM that makes wetting the toothbrush unnecessary. You can feel Kolyne work. It foams

When you remove Bacterial-Mouth... into every pit, fissure and crevice. Germs that cause Bacterial-Mouth and lead to stain, decay and gum diseases are quickly killed. They vanish and the entire mouth is purified. KOLYNOS kills 190 million germs in 15 seconds, 424 million in 60 seconds.

This amazing KOLYNOS FOAM removes food particles that ferment and cause decay... neutralizes acids... washes away tartar and the unwhitely mucoid coating that clouds teeth.

Easily and quickly, it cleans and polishes teeth down to the naked white enamel without injury. And for 3 hours after each brushing this cleansing, purifying process continues.

So long as you use the KOLYNOS Dry-Brush Technique teeth will remain gleaming white and sound, gums will be firm and healthy.

Look for Results in 3 Days
If you want whiter, sounder teeth and firm, pink gums start using KOLYNOS—a half-inch on a dry-brush, morning and night. Within 3 days teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades. Gums will look and feel better. Your mouth will tingle with a clean, sweet taste. Buy a tube of KOLYNOS from any drugist.

WALL STREET STOCKS FIRM NEAR END OF EXTREMELY SLOW MARKET

Total Transactions Are Close to the Smallest in More Than Two Years—U. S. Steel and Tobaccos Are Higher.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—A modicum of confidence appeared in today's stock market, after the market had started the new month suspiciously, and prices firmed up a little in the final few minutes.

Trading was close to a standstill, however, with a turnover of only 1,200,000 shares, or close to the smallest in more than two years. Since February is traditionally a "bear" month, but the market appears so thoroughly sold out that about foresees a good prospect of precedents being violated, traders moved with decided caution. Dividend reductions by Standards of Indiana and International Nickel had been expected, and barely caused a ripple.

Such stocks as U. S. Steel, Westinghouse Electric, Bethlehem Steel, Atchison, Case and Ward Baking "A" and Liggett & Myers "B" gained a point, and shares up about two included American Tobacco "B", Corn Products, Eastman and Worthington. American Water and Byers lost about a point.

Silver Is Down.

In the commodities, grains firmed, but silver sagged further, establishing a new historical low at 25 1/2c, off 1/4 cent. Wheat closed about unchanged to 1 cent higher, while corn gained about as much. Cotton closed about unchanged.

Movements in foreign exchange rates were in the main inconsequential. Sterling cables held at $4.85 1/2, while the French franc was a shade higher.

Mail Order Houses Report Sales.

The sales reports of the two leading mail order houses for the first period of the year were regarded as fairly satisfactory. Sears Roebuck showed a drop of 14.1-10 per cent from the like period of last year. This compared favorably with the final period of 1930, which showed a drop of 22.4 per cent, but failed to bear out estimate heard that sales would be off only about 10 per cent from the like period of a year ago. Montgomery Ward's January sales volume was off only 9.2-10 per cent, against a drop of 19.9-10 in December.

The disorganization with which the petroleum industry is still struggling was clearly shown by the Indiana dividend action. The management explained that the regular dividend was earned, but a lower disbursement seemed prudent in a period of unsettlement. In a discussion of the situation, the managing director of Royal Dutch said that the policy of oil conservation had reached a critical stage, and warned producers that abandonment of the principle would be "disastrous for many."

Mitchell on Bonus.

The veteran's bonus project continued to bring warnings from high banking sources. Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City, appearing before the Glass committee of the Senate, expressed the opinion that a $3,500,000,000 bond issue for that purpose would result in hundreds of small bank suspensions.

The money market remained glutted, with rates stationary, although the month end settlements may take up a little of slack during the next few days.

SAYS SOVIET IS PLANNING WAR

Former Communist Says 5-Year Plan Is the Groundwork.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Morris Gordin, formerly chief of the press bureau of the Communist International, told 200 members of the American Vigilants' Alliance last night that the five-year plan in Russia is a means of building up "the economic basis for the Red army's inevitable onslaught on all civilized nations." The alliance is composed of young college men and women living in New York.

"Those who trade with Russia, no matter what they sell, are in the long run selling ammunition to the Red army," said Gordin. Gordin, a former Communist, said his "disillusionment came when he realized that the 'proletarian dictatorship' represented not the higher aspirations of the upward-striving masses, but the lowest cravings of the lowest strata of disintegrated semi-humanity."

EASTERN INTERESTS OPPOSE TARIFF OR EMBARGO ON OIL

American Automobile Association Also Protest Against Mid-West Producers' Demand.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Proposals for an embargo or tariff on oil imports were opposed today before the Senate finance committee by representatives of industry on the Atlantic seaboard and the American Automobile Association.

Senator Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, testified that either of the proposals would be "economically injurious" to his State in direct proportion to its beneficial effects on Mid-West oil operators. He said, however, he thought a tariff based on an economic study of the differences in the cost of production here and abroad would be fair.

Albert R. White, Massachusetts textile manufacturer, presented a brief on behalf of the Associated Industries of his State, contending that neither an embargo nor tariff would aid the oil producers because the large manufacturers in New England would return to the use of coal.

"The amount of crude oil coming in, namely 10 per cent of what is used, seems to be too small an item to shut out, considering how little good it would do," White said.

Harold Walker of the Pan-American Oil Co. said he was authorized to state for the American Automobile Association that it is opposed in any tariff or embargo.

Fire Interrupts Radio Program.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 2.—While the "Back Home Hour" program was being broadcast from the Churchill Tabernacle over the Columbia network between 11 and 12 o'clock last night smoke was seen issuing from an anteroom. The Fire Department was notified and the Rev. Clinton H. Churchill and a choir of 60 voices continued the program until the smoke became so thick as to interfere. There was a hasty signing off and a scramble for the street. No one was injured. The blaze was confined to the room in which it originated.

DOUBT SIGNED FOR 3 SEASONS; HAFEY READY TO GET INTO FOLD

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—Major league baseball players wintering on the Pacific Coast are placing their signatures on 1931 contracts with a minimum of grumbling. Only eight out of 40, an Associated Press survey shows, are in the "raise the pay" class. Of these, four are rookies.

As expected, Babe Herman, burly Brooklyn outfielder, is after more money. The big slugger is a perennial holdout.

The recruits who think their palms should be crossed with more silver are Johnny Vergez, third baseman, going from Oakland to the New York Giants; his teammate, Ernie Lombardi, catcher, purchased by Brooklyn; Myrl Hoag, fleet Sacramento outfielder now the property of the New York Yankees, and Bob Johnson, outfielder, who belongs to the Philadelphia Athletics.

Walter Berger, heavy-hitting outfielder of the Boston Nationals, thinks his services are worth $12,500 for the coming season. Lynn Lary, New York Yankee shortstop, and Larry French, southpaw pitcher of Pittsburgh, also are in favor of the "salary uplift" movement.

Doubt Signed for Three Years.
Taylor Douthitt, St. Louis outfielder, signed a new three-year contract at the end of last season. Joe Cronin, Washington shortstop, voted the most valuable player in the American League last season, received a raise and bonus. Roy Johnson of Detroit and Smead Jolley of the Chicago White Sox, outfielders, and Ralph Kross, St. Louis American third baseman, agreed to accept "salary enlargements."

Chick Hafey and Ernest Orsatti, outfielders of the St. Louis Cardinals, say they will quit, while Earl McNelly of the Browns is satisfied.

Bill Terry a Holdout.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Bill Terry, slugging first baseman of the New York Giants, thinks he's entitled to a raise in salary for leading the National League in hitting last season. Terry, here for a brief visit before returning to his home in Memphis, said the Giants had offered him exactly the same salary he received a year ago. He has turned this offer down.

POLICEMAN KILLS ROBBER

Officer Also Shot in Attempted Holdup at Minneapolis.
By the Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 1. — An unidentified robber was shot and killed last night by Harry Mc-Graw, policeman, who in turn was wounded probably fatally, during an attempted holdup of a drug store.

McGraw is one of 200 patrolmen on special duty Saturday nights in stores throughout the city to avert holdups. When the robber whipped out a pistol, McGraw stepped into sight. Both fired when about 10 feet apart and fell to the floor.

A SIMPLE FRUIT DESSERT

An Excellent Type of Sweet for the Home Dinner.

Fruit desserts which are simple and light are greatly favored for home meals. An example of this type of sweet is this prune whip.
Wash one and one-half pounds of prunes and let them stand in water about 12 hours, or until soft.
Strain through coarse sieve. Add one-half cupful of sugar to three cupfuls of prune pulp. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff and fold into prune pulp. Serve with custard sauce.

Custard Sauce.
Beat together one-quarter cupful of sugar and two egg yolks until creamy. Place in saucepan and pour over them a half pint of hot milk that has been scalded, stirring constantly. Allow mixture to cook a few minutes.
Remove from the stove, add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and whip with an egg-beater until foamy.

A Word to Home Cooks.
Grease thoroughly with lard and after purchasing new cake tins, bake in the oven for one hour. This treatment will prevent cakes from sticking to the pan.

SOME NEW WAYS WITH WINTER VEGETABLES

These Recipes Give Them New Flavors and Make Them More Entertaining.

This is the time that most housekeepers might call the difficult season with vegetables. People are rather tired of the winter varieties, and though early asparagus, new peas, new potatoes and other succulent varieties are in the market, they are still too high in price for the average pocketbook.

Find some new ways of serving the everyday kinds—onions, turnips, old potatoes, dried lima beans, cauliflower, etc. There are a number of them and in new dresses they do not seem nearly so tiresome. Here are a few recipes that may help. Search out others or adapt these methods to other vegetables.

Savory Potato Puff.
Mashed white potatoes form the base for this. Serve it with roast beef, with steak or chops. Whip two cups mashed potatoes until very light, seasoning them in the usual way with butter, salt and pepper. Mix together two tablespoons minced canned pimiento, one tablespoon minced onion, two tablespoons minced parsley and one-fourth cup grated stale cheese.
Whip this into the potatoes and add two well beaten egg yolks.
Fold in the stiffly beaten whites and pour into a buttered baking dish, a rather shallow one. Bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for 25 minutes, or until browned and puff-
y. Serve as soon as possible.

Sweet Potato Souffle.
Good with ham or any pork dish.
Boil sweet potatoes, peel and mash, or put through a ricer. Measure two cupfuls and beat into them, one-fourth cup hot milk, two tablespoons melted butter, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half cup drained, canned, crushed pineapple.
Next add one beaten egg and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two.
Pour into a rather shallow buttered baking dish and brush the top with melted butter or sprinkle lightly with sugar—according to your taste. Bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for 25 minutes. Serve as soon as possible.

Lima Beans and Apples.
Soak one and one-half cups dried lima beans over night in cold water to cover. In the morning drain, cover with fresh water and boil slowly until tender. Drain and put alternate layers of the beans and slightly sweetened apple sauce in a baking dish; have the layers of apple sauce about one inch deep.
Sprinkle buttered bread crumbs on top and bake in a slow oven—300 degrees—for 45 minutes. Serve with lamb, mutton or pork, or as a luncheon dish.

Onions and Tomato Sauce.
Peel one dozen small white onions and cook in boiling salted water for 20 minutes, drain and place in a greased baking dish.
While the onions are cooking, stew two cups canned tomatoes with one teaspoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons shredded green pepper and one-fourth teaspoon pepper. Thicken with two tablespoons flour mixed with a little cold water and add one-fourth cup butter. Pour over the onions, sprinkle with bread crumbs and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven.

Cauliflower and Shrimp.
Boil a small firm head of cauliflower for 25 minutes or until tender. Drain and let stand upside-down until cold. Then reverse and carefully cut out the center, leaving a well. Separate the cauliflower that has been cut out into pieces and mix with one cup cooked, chilled shrimp, one-half cup diced celery and four minced sweet pickles. Season with French dressing. Pour one-fourth cup French dressing over the head of cauliflower, fill the center with the shrimp mixture and spread with well seasoned mayonnaise. Serve with a garnish of small lettuce leaves or on a bed of shredded lettuce. This makes a splendid Sunday night supper salad or a hearty luncheon salad.

CHOP SUEY OFFERS A CHANGE FOR THE BRIDGE LUNCHEON

Chinese Dishes Because of Their Tastiness Are Greatly Relished.

Chop suey and chow mein are dishes which are coming into favor for the "piece de resistance" at informal bridge luncheons and card parties.

These dishes often offer a welcome change from the average bridge luncheon menu. Because of their novelty and their tastiness both are greatly relished. Both are easily prepared as the needed ingredients are obtainable at the average grocery store.

Chop Suey.
Take one cup of meat (veal, pork or chicken), one tablespoon molasses, one can assorted chop suey vegetables, can of bean sprouts, one cup onion sliced thin, one cup shredded celery and three tablespoons chop suey sauce.
Cut the meat into small pieces and fry in a little lard or butter until nearly done. Add the vegetables and a little water or meat stock, a pinch of pepper, a tablespoon sugar and the chop suey sauce. Cook in a covered vessel for about 15 minutes. Mix a little cornstarch or flour with a tablespoon molasses in a halfcup of water. Add the bean sprouts and the flour mixture to the vegetable and meat mixture and bring to the boiling point. Serve with cooked rice.

HOW TO MEASURE THE TIME WHEN COOKING APPLES

A Practical Suggestion Is to Use an Egg Timer for This Purpose.
This is the season when waffles are particularly enjoyed, but all too often the cook has less of enjoyment than the others who merely look and eat, for she has the bother of wondering whether the waffle has cooked long enough, or if she is taking part in the conversation, wondering how long it has been in the iron.
One clever suggestion that came to us recently is for the use of an egg timer on the waffle tray.
Three minutes is just about long enough for cooking a waffle in the average iron that has been properly heated, and it is a simple matter to turn the timer each time one is put in to cook.

HEARING ON LEMAY FERRY SEWER EXCEPTIONS CONTINUED

Postponed Until After Adjournment of Legislature Which Is Considering Ralph Law Repeal.
Hearing of 1819 exceptions to benefits assessed in the Lemay Ferry Sewer District was continued until the adjournment of the Legislature after Representative Herman Barken entered his appearance in Circuit Court at Clayton today as associate counsel for the exceptors and asked for the continuance.

The cases were continued by Circuit Judge Frank Kelly of Cape Girardeau, called in by Judge Dearing of Potosi after a change of venue had been taken. Dearing had been named to hear the cases after Circuit Judge Mulloy had disqualified himself without stating his reasons.
The exceptions were filed by John E. Mooney, George Barnett and Ora M. Hill, attorneys and leaders of the Taxpayers' Protective Association which has actively opposed sewer construction under the Ralph law and now is leading a fight in the Legislature for repeal of the act.

Still Greater Savings DOLLARS ARE BIGGER TODAY
Bigger in what they will buy. Notice how much farther your food dollar, especially, goes now. Comparisons with last year's prices show remarkable declines.
Kroger customers know that rapid turnover assures fresh merchandise.
Rapid turnover offers another advantage. Because of it we can pass on to our customers the immediate benefit of market declines. Another reason why—your dollar buys more at a Kroger Store.

KROGER COFFEE WEEK
Coffee prices today are the lowest in years. But in spite of prices already low—we are making still further reductions as special prices for this week. For those not using Kroger

SENSIBLE SERGEANT

Checks and Double-checks Cough.

"I caught an over-size cold while on duty. I coughed and sneezed like a regiment. A druggist gave me some Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. It actually took only a couple of minutes—and I felt better. My cough was lighter, the 'grippy' feeling left me. I took Smith Brothers' twice more and cough and cold made a quick getaway." C. F. Schulze, Peoria, Ill.

WAITRESS FREED IN MURDER

Was Accused of Shooting Kansas City Druggist in Holdup.
By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Kan., Feb. 2.—Mrs. Peggy Moss, Joplin (Mo.) waitress, was acquitted today of the murder of R. S. Pinegar, 71-year-old druggist here, shot during the holdup of his store. The acquittal came at the end of 15 hours and 15 minutes of deliberation.

Paul Hindman, one of the robbers, was fatally wounded when Pinegar resisted. He was Mrs. Moss' former husband. She testified she accompanied him and Mr. and Mrs. Albert McCann to Kansas City, Kan., from Joplin, but did not know they had planned the drug store robbery. Mr. and Mrs. Albert McCann are under arrest at Carthage for the slaying of E. O. Gray, a jailer shot down while on duty.

UNIVERSITY CITY MAYOR POWER FIRM WITNESS

E. D. Ruth Jr. Says School Board Paid Too Much for Property on Enright.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 2.—E. D. Ruth Jr., Mayor of University City, was a witness for the Union Electric Light & Power Co., today at the hearing being conducted by the State Public Service Commission on the valuation and rates of the company. Ruth, a real estate dealer, gave testimony as to the present value of real estate owned by the company.

The City of St. Louis is contending for a reduction of about $1,000,000 a year in rates applicable to St. Louis and the company is resisting on the ground that such a reduction would cut its return below a reasonable level.

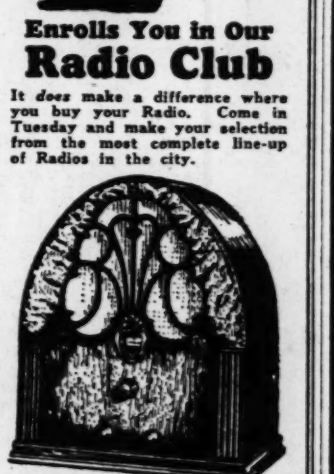

In giving his estimate of the value of a piece of real estate on Enright avenue near Vandeventer avenue owned by Union Electric, Ruth said he thought the Board of Education was $1.10 a square foot and the value he placed on the Union Electric property was about 50 cents a square foot.

CHILDREN WIN FIGHT FOR SHARE OF COMPENSATION

Court Suggests Law to Define Rights of Heirs Where Parents Are Divorced and Remarried.
Circuit Judge Hartmann, in altering a decision of the State Workmen's Compensation Commission, suggested that the compensation act be amended to define more clearly the rights of minor children in cases where the parents are divorced and the father has remarried.

The case in question involved an award of $20 a week for 410 weeks to Mrs. Rahe D. Robinson, 3423 William place, widow of Ernest Robinson, a lineman for the Union Electric Light and Power Co. Robinson was electrocuted while working on a pole in 1928. Attorneys for Robinson's two sons by a prior marriage filed a protest against the decision in Circuit Court and were upheld by Judge Hartmann, who ordered the $20 a week allowance divided into three equal parts. The Court, in his recommendation, held that an appeal would not have been necessary had the compensation law definitely established the rights of the children.

THE AGE OF YOUTH

CHAPTER ONE.

RANDOLPH GRANBY rang the bell twice. Into the second pressure of the button he put a petulant impatience. Bachelors become victims of routine, and Granby had been a bachelor for a long time. Longer than he liked to contemplate. Not that he desired to change his estate. The warlike fish in New York's matrimonial sea had no desire to be hooked, gaffed and placed in a bowl like a goldfish. To pretend to nibble at the entrancing bait trolled before him, and then dart swiftly away. . . . Nevertheless, it was a bit disconcerting to have one's barber remark, "Thinning a bit on top, sir." And it was not reassuring to have one's tailor suggest, though ever so diffidently, that a certain pattern was a trifle youthful. . . .

Of course, 29 was not young. Neither, by any stretch of the imagination, could it be termed old. Why, middle age didn't begin until the 30s were reached. He hadn't even reached the prime of life. Five sets of tennis; 36 holes of golf; a half-mile swim. He was stronger now than he had been at 20. All this chitter-chatter. . . .

"Time you settled down, Ran. Must be pretty lonesome having no one waiting home for you." Wait till you have a couple of kids of your own, old man. . . . Twaddle. He'd never seen a girl yet to whom he wanted to yield his freedom. And as for this wanted delight of domesticity. . . . Well, most of the men one encountered at the Mallet or the Stream were bachelors. Bachelors didn't hang around clubs. They were out somewhere, having a good time. . . .

ROMANCE? He could have plenty of that. A pretty girl, in her eyes that meant he might kiss her. And then—to move on before the light became more calculating. Before it became possessive. After all, we live but once, and to give over life to the keeping of another was too sublime a generosity. What did one get in return for it? Affection? Love? Well, even so. But one paid so tremendously for those things. . . .

He had been reflecting on these matters the previous night when he turned in. He had worn a smile through the pleasant dreams of the night. And he had been awakened by his man, Curtin, to continue cheery reflections. That Ryder girl. Sweet thing. Her mamma had been angling for six months. Well, mamma had been pretty frigid last night. Perfectly all right. She had justice with her. If a man didn't intend committing himself, then he had no right to sew up a girl's time. . . .

Meantime, it was pleasant, sort of to realize that one didn't have to think of a new, attractive place for luncheon, could neglect order the orchids, arranging too-late parties at the Embassy or Montmartre. In short, one could, until a new butterfly flitted before one's vision, relax into perfect unconcern for everything save one's own peculiarly private concerns. . . .

"Selfish." All right. What of it? A shave, a bath, a perfectly served breakfast, and now, with the first cigarette of the morning soothingly permeating his lungs, the mail. He liked his morning mail. Though he rarely appeared at the estate office, knowing that his lawyers were honest and far more able than himself, it was a subtle fiction, to which his attorneys gave outward credence, that he himself studied every proposed investment, every intended liquidation of any of his assets into cash. All letters that were addressed to . . .

Curtin shook his head. "I told

A Chorus-Girl Gambles Her Future in an Attempt to Crash the Gates of Society and Win a Rich Husband.

—By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE—

Mrs. Crandall that would be your first thought, and she told me to tell you not to bother. She said that no one could possibly be permitted to see her husband, and that she hoped his illness would not too greatly inconvenience you, sir."

Ran Granby pursed his lips. "I can carry on by myself," he stated. "One must, Curtin, when an emergency arises."

"Quite so, sir," agreed Curtin. There was nothing in the valet's manner to indicate that the task of reading his own mail—that suddenly confronted Granby—was of anything less than the utmost magnitude. A man may not be a hero to his valet, but the successful valet conceals that fact.

The man's prompt acquiescence soothed Granby's ruffled mood. He saw himself, briefly, as a man who carried great burdens, arrived at momentous decisions, and the slight hurried him into an impulse.

"Crandall hasn't been chippy for several weeks," he remarked. "Er—telephone his wife and tell her to send all bills—all of them, be sure—to my lawyers. Tell her that his salary continues, and that in the event of anything special arising she may draw upon my lawyers up to $500. Attend to that at once, Curtin."

QUITE properly impressed, his lips forming soundless words of appreciation, Curtin left the girl just launched into society, his friends chuckled. . . .

HIS men friends liked him. He turned away from the mirror and surveyed the pile of mail before him. He grinned with distaste. He could send it to his lawyers. . . . After all, he had talked to Curtin about "carrying on."

Furthermore, he would not care for Blenkinsstone, Birmingham & Magruder to know that he didn't even read his own letters. So he sat down before the desk, pulling the envelopes nearer to him, and busied himself with a paper cutter.

He made a note of that; something from Cartier's. . . . The Governor of the Mallet. . . . The Mayor's Committee of Reception for Distinguished. . . . The Alliance Française. . . . Twenty dollars to purchase a saxophone for a convict in Pennsylvania? Damnation, a man who wanted to play the sax ought to stay in jail. . . .

Little Jinny Murdock's coming-out party. . . . Good heavens, had Joe and Evelyn been married that long? . . . Would he care to buy 40 per cent of Maxey Welnsaub's managerial rights in Cocoa Riley? . . . Rot. Riley couldn't go three rounds with that little Forty-seventh street. . . .

And what did little Donna want, bless her baby gold-digger's heart? Just a thousand a month for—how long? Only a couple of years, eh? Well, well, wasn't Donna modest? . . .

Contentedly he tore the letter across, started to drop it in the wastebasket, then drew the pieces back. He fitted them together and reread the letter.

"My Dear Mr. Granby: I have tried the stage, but have no talent. Only—somehow—he didn't think so. The letter was so straightforward, so frank, that it was almost despairing. Of course, proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me? Yours truly, Donna Raynor."

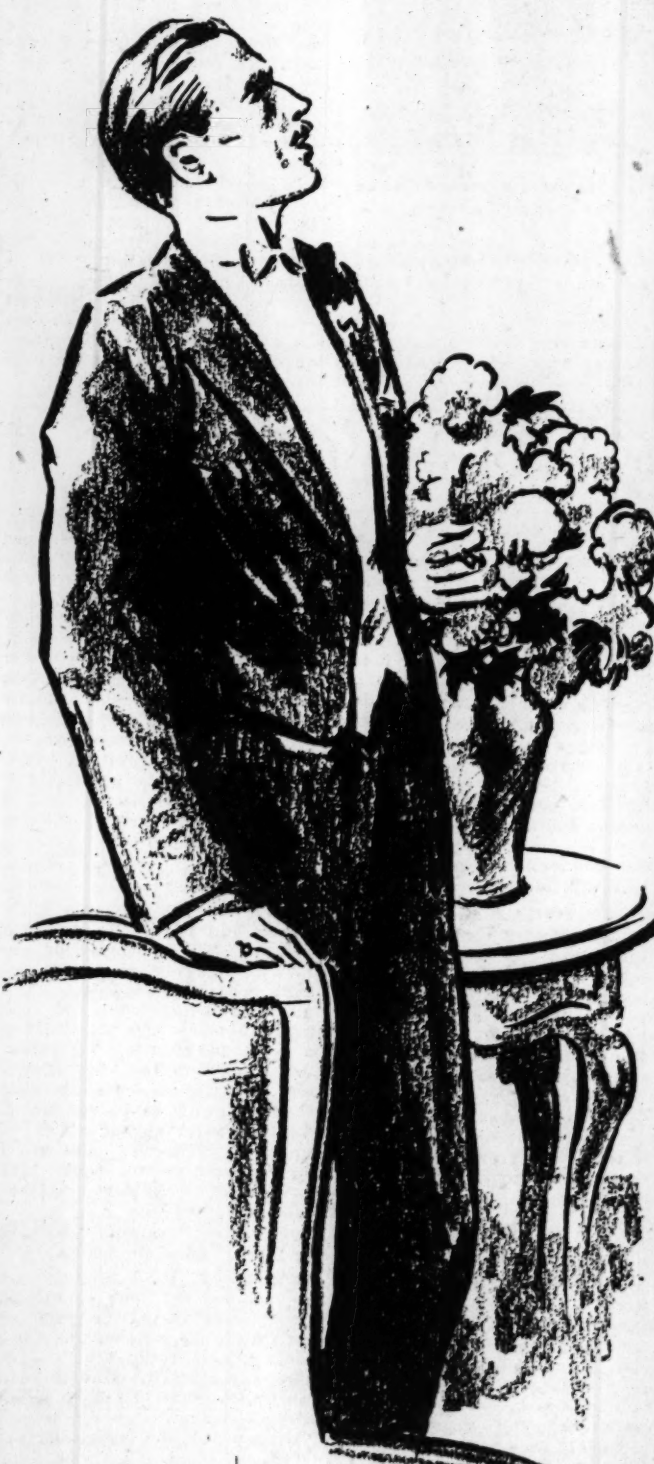

He didn't think so. His lips set firmly as he arrived at this thought: Why should she try him

My dear Mr. Granby:

I have tried the stage, but have no talent. I have tried stenography and being a salesgirl. I hate to work. I can't write or paint or sing.

But I could get a rich husband if I had the proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me?

Yours truly,
Donna Raynor

Randolph Granby was spoiled as a rich bachelor must be spoiled.

room. As such matters are appraised, in this matter-of-fact world of ours, Ran Granby was a gentleman. Women came to no particular good by him, nor did they come to any particular harm. He was neither stingy nor lavish. And if he liked an audience for his generosity—well, so do most of us. . . .

The worst of that could be said of Ran Granby was that he was self-loving and a bit stupid. The best that could be said was that he was honest and courageous. An average sort of man, save for his millions. Spoiled, as a rich bachelor must be spoiled, but even those who condemned his swift flirtations with every new debutante admitted that Ran was harmless. Necessary to the education of every young Granby read it a third, fourth and fifth time, and that would be a sparkling thing to do, now, wouldn't it? Fost a cheap little gold-digger. . . . Damn it, it was the frankest, most straightforward letter he'd ever read. He wondered what she looked like.

He visualized her, her hard eyes; too-red lips; decent figure, probably, which she would reveal as generously as the candid fashion of the day permitted; bobbed hair and untidy ends; a manner blended of greed and cunning; a voice whose commonness she would try to disguise by a broad A and a rising inflection at the end of each sentence. . . .

YET again he stayed the hand that started to toss the torn note away. The writer of this letter must be of different mentality from the ordinary little go-getter of the forties. Or perhaps she was merely a mistress of what he had heard business executives term the "approach."

He studied the handwriting. He wished he were one of those Johnnies one was always meeting at dinners nowadays, who could tell you all about yourself by the way you parted your hair or did your tie. There ought to be all sorts of information about the writer of this note, concealed in her handwriting. . . .

But her way of phrasing her extraordinary request ought to afford some indication of her character. "I hate work." Fair enough; so did practically every one who wasn't a howling success at his or her work, but how many would admit to laziness? No talent? Modesty? Or the frankness of desperation? Well, not so modest. She certainly had confidence in her ability to land a rich husband. Given the proper setting. And as his boyhood saying had it. It would take her two years to get the proper man. Not going to take any poor bee-seeching devil with perhaps only eight or nine millions to his credit. Two years. Sounded as though she intended combing the field pretty thoroughly. And a thousand a month, eh? Not as expensive as the "friends" of many of his pals. Intimating, very politely, that she wasn't overly grasping. It was as fascinating as that game—what was it? Twenty questions? You thought of something and somebody clever asked you which hemisphere it was in, and a few things like that, and wound up by telling you that you were thinking of Charlie Chaplin. . . .

It would be sort of run to ring up a few of the lads and make 'em last? Wasn't he about the best-known of the rich bachelors of New York? . . .

HIS expression changed, became shamefaced now. After all, this was a poor celebrity on which he was priding himself. Furthermore, a man of affairs has no time to waste on the contemplation of the acquisitive mind of a gold-digger. What with Crandall being ill, matters that would have been taken care of by the secretary must be attended to by the master. This time he did not stay his hand; the torn pieces of the letter fluttered into the wastebasket. . . .

Half an hour later he was closeted with the dour Magruder, making suggestions as to the reinvestment of certain funds, which suggestions were sooty received. . . .

Magruder sagged no pills. He was junior partner in the ablest firm of estate lawyers in America. Mr. Granby could take his business elsewhere if he liked, but there'd be no damned nonsense about the estate funds so long as Magruder had charge of them. This was the impression Magruder conveyed, and the impression was the absolutely legitimate child of his intention and his conviction. . . .

His client felt like a 9-year-old boy as he rode uptown. Damn it, the possessor of twenty millions was entitled to consideration. . . . Those twenty millions had been five, however, when Granby Senior had died. In less than a quarter of a century Magruder had quadrupled the estate. No, it was best not to affect a foolish pride with Magruder. After all—he saved his ruffled feelings—investment was Magruder's excuse for being. He, Ran Granby, had life as his excuse for being. He was—an artist in living. He rather liked the phrase. An artist in living. . . .

For a vague moment he meditated going back to Magruder, demanding that everything be turned over to him. . . . Then he lifted his eyes and noted that his car had paused, in obedience to a traffic signal, at the exact corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-seventh street. An impulse whose origin he couldn't have discovered even had he tried, but which lay obscurely in his resentment against his fancied belittlement at the hands of Magruder, made him open the door of his car. . . .

"Won't need you now, Meade," he said to his chauffeur. "Wait for me at the Mallet." The driver touched his cap, and Granby joined the west-bound drift of pedestrian traffic. On the far side of Sixth avenue he paused, a door of room 361. A voice, whose harsh modulations survived the muffling of the door between answered and bade him enter. He turned the knob and entered the room. . . .

At a desk that had perhaps, in the days of the hotel's grandeur, been part of a lightly pretty French suite, but which was now as shabby as everything else in the place, sat a girl. She was everything from exposed legs to frizzled hair, what Granby's first mental description of Donna Raynor had been. . . .

A cheap, blatant, assertive, salable gold digger. "Well, awfully," she greeted him, "leave the bill on the table and tell your boss that Miss Raynor will give it her closest personal attention when her father's estate is settled."

"Are you Miss Raynor?" Granby asked. "Who's asking me?" she inquired. "My name is Granby—Randolph Granby," he said. . . .

As stupid a thing as he'd ever done. To give his name, his real name to a person like this. The person like this leaned forward in her chair. Mouth agape, she stared at him. . . .

"Well, for the love of Mike," she exclaimed. "So you fell for that?" . . .

Like a cat she swung from the chair. Two round, hard and not altogether clean little fists dug into her hip bones. . . .

"Say, she cried, "I didn't believe Donna'd do a thing like that. But it doesn't make any difference if she did. She ain't going through with it. You start picking them up and laying them down until you're out of here. Get me? O-U-T spells out. On your way."

HER voice rose stridently. Through the partly opened door that Granby sensed led to a bath came another voice. "Jinny, are you rehearsing?" Or is some one there? . . .

The owner of the voice waited for no answer. Framed in the doorway was as pretty a girl as Granby had ever seen, and her charm was enhanced, rather than diminished, by the towel with which she rubbed at hair that had obviously just been washed. . . .

"Miss Raynor," said Jinny in what she evidently considered a most overwhelming tone, "let me present Mr. Randolph Granby. And I hope you're ashamed of yourself, Donna Raynor," she cried. . . .

Incontinently she fled the room. Afterward, reviewing the moment, Ran Granby decided that that situation could have been met in only one particular way, and that was the way this girl met it. She giggled. . . .

Now, there is no dignity in a giggle. But there is less dignity in appearing before a complete stranger with a damp towel about obviously wet hair. Nor was the

Betty

WHO WROTE "THE OFFICE WIFE" AND "ALUMONY"

CHAPTER THIRTY.

THE invitations for the party were issued. They were engraved affairs and had an appearance of solidity and respectability. They read for a buffet supper at 11 o'clock with dancing before and afterwards.

Helen, the invitation in hand, said nothing about it at home. She went to Lorna in the studio and told her frankly that it would be impossible for her to come.

"But, my dear," wheedled Lorna, who saw her schemes crashing about her. "It's important that you should. The company will be there, of course, and Lorrimer and your friend, Lessways. But there will be outside people too, producers and such and it is to your interest to be there. Ask Kay Harrison!"

Helen therefore asked him and Harrison, a light-hearted young man who believed that Helen could take care of herself, urged attendance.

"A little publicity at this stage of the game won't hurt you, Helen." She believed him and went back to Lorna later.

"You'll think me a fool," she said defiantly. "But I can't come, at least not without a chaperone."

"Well," Lorna affected to ponder, "would your mother come with you?"

Helen laughed outright. "No—she'd die of fright."

"Haven't you—sisters?"

"Yes."

Helen thought a moment. "Virginia? But she knew that Virginia would never fit in . . . and besides . . . she would prefer Betty if she could persuade her to come. Betty knew some of the people, too."

"There's my sister Betty!" she began, tentatively.

"The very one," cried Lorna. "Look, I'll send her a card and you'll explain, will you, there's a darling? Don't fail us, Helen. We'd all be disappointed."

In this way Betty received the invitation.

Helen and she talked it over. "I don't like her," said Helen, honestly, "but this will be different. The outsiders will only be motion picture people . . . and I'd like you to meet some of the company . . . Mr. Redding—"

"This was the leading man, and you'll like Kay Harrison. Mr. Lessways will be there too and Mr. Lorrimer. You'll know quite a few people. Mr. Harrison advised that I go and of course I can't go alone. Would you mind very much?"

"I don't care about the party—as a party—much. But if it would help me along I do think that I would be foolish not to turn up. Think it over, won't you?"

Betty thought. Virginia abetted Helen in the idea. Mrs. Warren and Gladys were neutral. Eventually Betty, rather against her better judgment, agreed. For herself she hated the idea, but she knew that Helen believed she should go and she felt that Helen would be a good deal better off with her sister around. And so, to Lorna's delight, she accepted.

The night came. Lorrimer sent his car, a courtesy that Betty could find no reason for refusing. She and Helen arrived at the apartment a little after 10 o'clock, which was, Helen assured her wisely, the proper time.

Helen looked so lovely that Betty was almost afraid. She knew a pang of tenderness that hurt, looking at Helen, as the child pre-occupied before a mirror and asked if she'd do.

Betty was charming in a straight silver gown, which had been Helen's present to her. "Think of the years you've bought clothes for me, darling! I've been Helen's argument, and with the only note of color a fan Helen had found for her, the shades of her eyes repeated in the uncurled feathers."

The car came and the two girls were bundled into it with the family crowding about to see them off. Harry was there, a little disapproving but saying nothing. But Bob was not present. He had heard of the engagement and had stayed at home.

Lorna's ornate apartment had been swept and garnished for the occasion. Much of the amassed furniture had been removed, which greatly improved its appearance, and as the big room opened into another there was good waxed and polished floor space for dancing. Three maids were in attendance on the women in as many bedrooms and the caterers under the slant-eyed gaze of the house servants were busy in the dining room.

Lorna herself was looking very lovely. She wore the blue of her eyes and the gold of her hair and no less than three strings of pearls, one of which was a new acquisition.

She was affable in the extreme to Betty as she welcomed her. And the minute she saw her she hated her. She knew her own danger as she had not known or realized it before. This slim girl, with the quiet voice and beautiful steady eyes had all that Lorna lacked. She had unblemished youth, sincerity and natural charm.

When Baby Goes Out

MOST assuredly you can take your baby outdoors in winter. Fresh air is as essential to his health and growth as is good food.

After he is three months old you can safely take him out in the perambulator on pleasant days from 11 a. m. to 2 or even 3 p. m. Generally speaking, this is the most favorable period of the day for baby's airing, but in our changeable weather conditions New York mothers must use their own good judgment.

Present-day perambulators afford excellent protection, so baby can be safely taken out, even on quite cold days, for a shorter period, of course. I would except delicate babies and those under four months who should not go out if the thermometer is below freezing.

Your baby will not take cold if you have him properly covered, especially so his feet are warm and that the wind never blows in his face. On cold days keep in the sun, but never allow the sun to shine directly in his face. The hood of the carriage is designed to give all this protection and its adjustment is up to the mother.

Use the Paper Bags

Save paper bags that your groceries, etc., come in. Turn top edge of bag over several times, cut fashion. Then, when preparing vegetables or other foods, throw all the parings and scraps into the bag. They can readily be emptied into the garbage can and there is no mess on the table to clean up.

Don't hang pictures all over the house regardless of their value to the rooms in artistic beauty. A picture should have a definite, appropriate place or not be hung at all.

TWEEDS FOR TOWN AND COUNTRY

By ANN ROBERTS

A boldly striped scarf is the only trimming for this tweed dress.

YOU always think of tweeds as meant for suits, now don't you? But not these new tweeds. The materials themselves are so astonishingly beautiful, so refined in the way of weaving that they seem to have inspired the designers to new and better models.

Now they are making dresses that are quite lovely. They are not suits and still they look like suits. The one pivotal point of difference seems to be that there are no blouses worn with them. This may not seem, at first glance, a very important point, but when you realize the care and laundry and cleaning that the lack of a blouse does away with, you will know how clever the designers have been to work along the general principles of these newer lines.

In the first place, the scarf has come into the picture in a most important manner. It is so manipulated that it takes care of the whole upper portion of the costume, filling in the neckline and at the same time constituting the trimming. The scarf will be printed or plain. It will be plaited or striped, but in one way or another it is used to supply a contrasting note and to give that touch of variety which makes up the whole design into the spirit of very latest modernity.

On one of the frocks shown here you will see a rather boldly striped scarf plaited and that will illustrate for you admirably the possibilities of the new neckline as it is used in connection with these tweed dresses.

Sometimes the scarf is drawn through the collar only to come around to the front to be tied in a big loop under the chin. Again, both ends are thrown over one shoulder to be allowed to swing away over the back. Again they will be arranged to hang straight down the front on either side—this when you do not wish your throat to be so tightly bound around with the warmth that this sort of scarf is apt to supply. Sometimes the scarf will be pure white against the background of a very dark tweed. This is excellent in effect, giving a crispness that only the boldness of the contrast can achieve.

The dresses themselves are either of the coat dress variety—as the one shown in the picture—or of a two-piece suit idea, which is not really cut in two pieces, but sewed all together so that the dress can be slipped into easily and buttoned together with the least possible effort.

THE possibilities of this kind of dress are numberless. It is just the sort of thing that the business woman will revel in, to be worn under her fur coat now and then to be worn without a coat later on. The business woman who has to travel in connection with her duties will welcome it as a bonanza, and the buyer who no longer tries to knock them cold in black satin and diamonds will welcome it.

The pressing necessities for these dresses are also nil. The skirts, when they are pleated, are often, have the pleats stitched down on the edges so that they stay nicely in place. Often extra pleats are graduated in width toward the bottom, answered on to give the effect of flaring, flat pleats and these are stitched many times closely together to keep them flat.

The waist sections are made with wide revers also stitched flat, and big buttons with well-worked buttonholes to keep them solidly in place.

These tweed dresses are the sort of things that a woman living in the country can wear to town for shopping or lunching, always looking well dressed in them. Also the reverse is true when the city woman chooses such a costume to wear in the country for her week-ends.

The dress in the picture, for instance, that you will in all probability take for a coat suit has a trick in it because those wide revers fold one over the other, buttoning straight up under the collar, giving the effect when the waist is wholly closed into place, of the one-piece dress, which it really is.

EVERY simply tailored hat is the one to wear with the tweedy dress, and when I say "tailored" I mean just that, for there are innumerable things used to give them that effect. The hat made of

These tweed dresses are the sort of things that a woman living in the country can wear to town for shopping or lunching, always looking well dressed in them. Also the reverse is true when the city woman chooses such a costume to wear in the country for her week-ends.

The dress in the picture, for instance, that you will in all probability take for a coat suit has a trick in it because those wide revers fold one over the other, buttoning straight up under the collar, giving the effect when the waist is wholly closed into place, of the one-piece dress, which it really is.

Noise

THE noise and din of the modern metropolis severely taxes the health of its dwellers and injures their ears.

This was demonstrated in a study of noise recently made in New York City by the Noise Abatement Commission. In its published report the commission defined noise as "sound that is without agreeable or musical quality."

That noise is harmful may be appreciated by the fact that it evokes a feeling of annoyance.

Experimental studies have further demonstrated that sudden loud and unpleasant noises tend to increase muscular tension, respiration and circulation.

This response interferes with the efficient working of the body.

An easily appreciated effect of noise is its disturbance of sleep. The commission observes that the abatement of noise is imperatively needed because it interferes with sleep. Every individual needs between six and nine hours sleep.

Most persons are accustomed to sleep during the night, and hence at least the hours from 11 to 1 should be as free of distressing noises as possible.

Many night workers have to sleep during the day. This is another strong argument for the elimination of noise whenever possible.

All street noises are indirectly harmful because windows have to be closed, keeping out fresh air.

The commission found that constant loud noises are apt to impair hearing. Noise interferes with efficiency in the worker and makes attention and concentration more difficult. Noise interferes with sleep and has a harmful effect on development of infants and young children.

While You Sleep!

When a headache, bilious, or a gassy condition tells that bowels need help, there's nothing like Cascarets. Doctors say this marvelous substance actually strengthens bowel muscles. That's why Cascarets brings constipation sufferers lasting relief. A Cascarets contains cascara in its most palatable form. No gripping; no discomfort or sickening effects when you use Cascarets. Just quick, sure help for sluggish bowels. Both upper and lower bowels are cleansed. Coated tongue is soon cleared; breath sweetened; eyes brightened; the whole system benefits from a candy Cascarets. Try one tonight and see for yourself!

Cold in Head, Chest or Throat?

Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel better. Repeat the Musterole-rub once an hour for five hours... These good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve. It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Keep Musterole handy—just tubes. All druggists. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

The Cold, Cold Night.
When the family is large, one does not always have enough hot water bottles to go around to warm up the beds on bitter cold nights. An ordinary quart flask filled with boiling water, then tightly corked and protected with a towel will answer just as well and will be no expense.

When tinting garments with a soap dye, put the cake of soap into a shaker and shake in the water until it is the shade desired. This insures an even dye, clean hands and a good disposition in consequence.

Freed at last from Discomfort of Dyspepsia

"I suffered stomach and bowel discomfort," says Mrs. Alice Tabetta of Lexington, Mass. "Have taken ACIDINE regularly and from all the other medicines I had taken, I never found such relief. It seems wonderful to be free from gas and stomach ache." Almost everyone who takes ACIDINE raves about it. More than two million packages have been sold. It's absolutely amazing the way this prescription succeeds when many other remedies fail. ACIDINE contains a base, which in laboratory tests, digests 800 times its weight of starch, offsets the cause of trouble. It neutralizes acids, soothes irritated stomach linings, relieves gassy headaches, sleeplessness and nervousness. Few other known remedies contain this combination to relieve acid stomach. ACIDINE also fortifies your resistance by reducing acidity. Get ACIDINE today at "Walgreen's." Watch how quick acid indigestion, acid stomach, pain, heartburn, dizziness, fullness, bloatedness are relieved. Make refunds money if not delighted.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant. No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help ease the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action. If you have a "dark brown mouth" unpleasant breath—a dull, tired feeling—tick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

The Successful Way

If your kitchen wall is painted, never have it painted again without first removing all grease and dirt with soap, water and ammonia. Otherwise the paint will not adhere and in a very short time the peeling process will begin.

An Ironing Hint

Some women know from experience that wool and silk are beyond repair if scorched (animal fibers are destroyed by extreme heat) and they will caution you to use a moderately hot iron for these fabrics. It is a wise caution.

To End Common Coughs, Mix This at Home

To end quickly those hard coughs due to colds, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble. For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it. This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germladen phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for incipient bronchial coughs and other severe coughs due to colds. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

GETTING HIS GOAT
THOROUGHbred RACE HORSES ARE NEARLY ALWAYS TEMPERAMENTAL AND REQUIRE THE COMPANIONSHIP OF SOME OTHER ANIMAL LIKE A DOG OR GOAT IN THEIR STABLE. WHEN GOATS WERE COMMONLY USED FOR THIS PURPOSE UNSCRUPULOUS RIVALS WOULD STEAL THEM TO MAKE THE HORSE FRETFUL AND UNABLE TO DO HIS BEST.

Palm Beach to Have First Grand Opera
ALTHOUGH Palm Beach is far off the theatrical track, the winter resort this year will have its first grand opera. The city also is to have a season of drama. Announcement of Muriel McCormick's Palm Beach Playhouse venture, which will introduce drama, has been followed by news that the Roman Chorus, which plays an important part in the resort's winter life, will stage "Il Pagliaccio" at fresco at the fashionable "Everglades club" between Feb. 1 and 19. Ernesto Dodda, Argentine baritone, will be a guest artist, singing the role of Tonio. When sugar gets lumpy and hard place it in the refrigerator for a couple of days and it will become as it should be.

JERK-WATER TOWNS
IN EARLY RAILROAD DAYS IT SOMETIMES BECAME NECESSARY TO STOP TRAINS AT WAYSIDE STREAMS TO REPLENISH THE WATER SUPPLY. THE PRACTICE OF CARRYING WATER IN LEATHER BUCKETS FROM THE STREAM TO THE ENGINE WAS KNOWN AS "JERKING WATER." LATER TRAINS STOPPED AT SMALL TOWNS WHICH BECAME KNOWN AS JERK-WATER TOWNS.

HOOVER DECLARES RELIEF BILLS HIT AT VERY ROOT OF SELF-GOVERNMENT

President Reiterates Opposition to Drouth and Unemployment Appropriations in Remarks at Press Conference.

SAYS HE HAS FAITH IN THE RED CROSS

Quotes Cleveland's Statement That People Should Support the Government and Not the Government and the People.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—President Hoover today opposed the proposed appropriations for relief measures which would strike the very root of self-government. While the President expressed confidence that the Red Cross, together with local agencies, could take care of both the drouth and unemployment situations, he said he was willing to pledge himself to invoke every resource of the Federal Government if other means should fail.

The President expressed views personally at the regular semi-weekly press conference.

Text of the President's remarks follows:

"Certain Senators have issued public statements to the effect that unless the President and the House of Representatives agree to appropriations from the Federal Treasury for charitable purposes it will force an extra session of Congress."

"I do not wish to add acrimony to a discussion, but would state this case as I see its fundamentals."

"This is not an issue as to whether people shall go hungry or cold in the United States. It is solely a question of the best method which hunger and cold shall be prevented."

"It is a question as to whether the American people on one hand will maintain the spirit of charity and mutual self-help through voluntary giving and the responsibility of local government as distinguished on the other hand from appropriations out of the Federal Treasury for such purposes."

Now at Self-Government.

"My own conviction is strong that if we break down this sense of responsibility of individual character to individual and mutual self-help in this country in the face of national difficulty, and if start appropriations of this character we have not only impaired something infinitely valuable in the life of the American people, but have struck at the roots of our government."

"Once this has happened it is the cost of a few score millions we are faced with the abyss of reliance in the future upon Government charity in some form or other."

"The money involved is in the least of the costs to American ideals and American institutions."

"President Cleveland in confronted with a similar situation in part: 'A prevalent tendency to regard the limited position of power and duty should, I think, be constantly reiterated, to the effect that the lesson should be constantly enforced that though the Government, the Government, the Government should not support people.'"

Friendliness and Charity

"The friendliness and charity of our countrymen can always be relied upon to relieve their citizens in misfortune. This has been repeatedly and quite demonstrated. Federal aid in cases encourages the expectation of paternal care on the part of Government and weakens the spirit of our national character, while it prevents the development of our people of kindly sentiment and which strengthens the bonds of common brotherhood."

"And there is a practical lesson in all this. The help daily extended by neighbors, local and national agencies, municipalities, by industry and throughout the country today many times any appropriation proposed. The opposite of the Federal Treasury is likely to stifle this giving and destroy far more resources than the proposed charity from the Federal Government."

"The basis of successful national character is to support and organize the initiative."
